ABCA Honors Hartman

Virginia Tech baseball coach Chuck Hartman has been selected for the American Baseball Coaches Association Hall of Fame. The induction ceremony will take place on January 3, 2004, during the ABCA's annual convention in San Antonio, Texas.

"This is every college coach's dream," says Hartman. "To be selected for the national hall of fame and to be in there with so many great coaches from throughout the country is the highest recognition you can receive on the collegiate level. A lot of good things have happened to me this year, and I feel truly honored."

Hartman, who was inducted into the Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame in November, is also a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Hall of Fame. He was inducted into the NAIA Hall in 1989 for his achievements at High Point College (now University), where he coached for 19 years before coming to Tech in 1979.

Hartman is entering his 25th season at Virginia Tech and his 44th season overall. His 1,338 career wins rank him third among active Division I baseball coaches in victories and fourth all-time. Hartman's overall coaching record is 1,338-705-8, while his current record at Tech is 855-480-8.

Hartman, a 1957 graduate of the University of North Carolina, will be the second Virginia Tech baseball coach to be inducted into the ABCA Hall of Fame. G.F. "Red" Laird, who coached baseball at Tech for 30 years, was inducted into the ABCA Hall in 1971.

Saunders Highest Pick

Virginia Tech pitcher Joe Saunders was the 12th player picked in the 2002 Major League Baseball amateur draft. Saunders, a junior left-hander from Springfield, Va., was drafted in the first round by the Anaheim Angels.

Saunders became the Hokies' highest draft pick ever in the June draft and is the fourth Tech player under Coach Chuck Hartman to be drafted before the second round. Junior first baseman Franklin Stubbs was selected 19th in the 1982 draft by the Los Angeles Dodgers, while junior right-handed pitcher Brad DuVall was picked 15th by the Baltimore Orioles in 1987. DuVall, who rejected the Orioles' offer and returned to Tech for his senior season, was the 23rd overall pick in the 1988 draft by the St. Louis Cardinals. Junior right-handed pitcher Denny Wagner was the 42nd player picked in the 1997 draft. Wagner was drafted by the Oakland Athletics as a supplemental pick sandwiched between the first and second rounds.

During his three seasons at Tech, Saunders compiled a 27-7 overall record and a 3.43 earned run average. He registered 255 strikeouts and 115 walks in 315 career innings pitched. Both his strikeout and innings pitched totals rank fourth all-time at Tech.

Saunders is tied for third in career pitching victories at Tech following three consecutive nine-win seasons. He ranks second among Tech left-handers in career wins behind Brian Fitzgerald (28). Saunders led the BIG EAST in strikeouts in 2002 with 102 on the way to first-team all-conference honors. His 1.81 ERA in BIG EAST games was the best of any league starter and the second-best overall.

First Baseball Jersey Retired
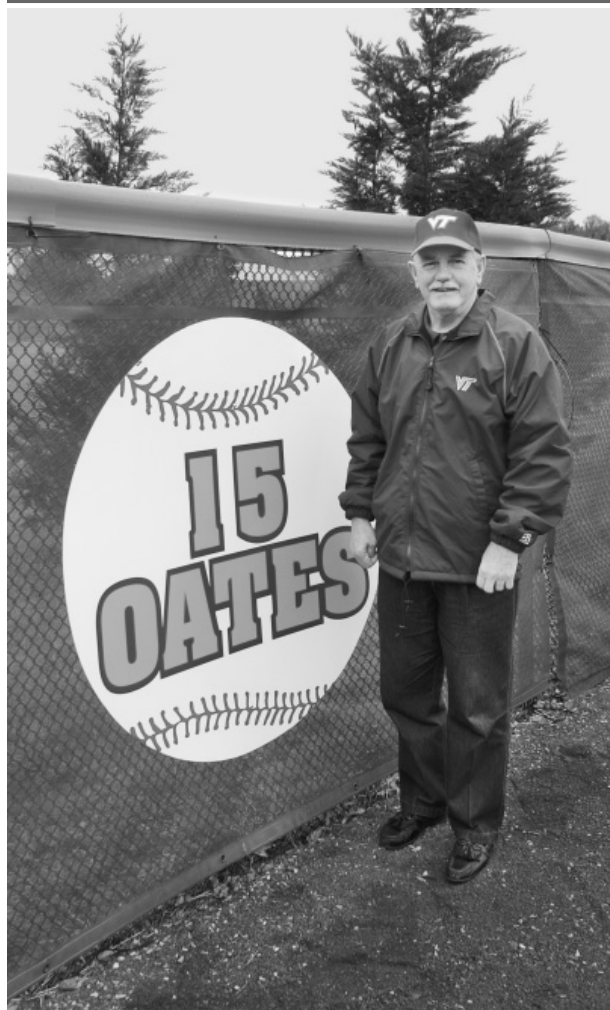

Virginia Tech retired the jersey of former Tech baseball great Johnny Oates during a special ceremony prior to last year's BIG EAST Conference double-header against Connecticut at English Field.

Oates was presented with a framed jersey in recognition of this honor. A special display on the outfield fence with his name and number was also unveiled. His jersey is the first baseball jersey to be retired by Virginia Tech. Oates' number 15 will still be available to future Tech players.

Oates came to Blacksburg in 1965 and was an outstanding catcher for the Virginia Tech baseball team. He hit .410 in 1966 and .342 in 1967 before signing with the Baltimore Orioles after his junior season. Oates spent 11 seasons in the major leagues as a player, seeing action in two World Series with the Los Angeles Dodgers and one with the New York Yankees. After retiring as a player in 1981, Oates tried his hand at coaching, and went on to become the major league manager of the Baltimore Orioles and the Texas Rangers. He was inducted into the Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame in 1983.

Double-Trouble

Tech All-BIG EAST middle infielders Spencer Harris and Marc Tugwell are nearing school career records for both putouts and assists at their respective positions. That shouldn't come as much of a surprise.

Harris and Tugwell moved into starting jobs at shortstop and second base, respectively, as freshmen in 2000 and have been mainstays in the Tech lineup ever since. Their first season, they helped the Hokies to a school-record 66 double plays. As sophomores, they helped Tech lead the BIG EAST in double plays with 63 and last year as juniors, they were both selected first-team All-BIG EAST at their positions. During the fall, the league coaches named both Harris and Tugwell to the 2003 preseason all-conference squad.

Harris has started 171 of the 173 games in which he has played at Tech and has a .923 career fielding average. He is 72 putouts and 91 assists away from setting new career marks. Tugwell has started in 156 of the 164 games he has played and carries a .966 career fielding mark that has seen him commit just 27 errors in 796 chances. He is just 39 putouts and 10 assists away from new records for a Tech second baseman.

Best of all, defense isn't this double-play combo's only forte. Last season, both players enjoyed their best offensive years, combining for 26 doubles, six triples, 10 home runs, 87 runs batted in and 89 runs scored.

Making a Move

Sophomore Chris Stanton, who started 43 games in the outfield last season as a freshman, is slated to replace first-team All-BIG EAST third baseman John West, who finished his Tech career last season. Stanton got some valuable experience over the summer when he played shortstop for the Vienna (Va.) Mustangs and was named the MVP of the Clark Griffith Collegiate Baseball League.

Stanton led the league with a .386 batting average, 59 hits and 19 stolen bases and was tied for the league lead with 34 runs scored. He ranked third in slugging percentage (.464) and on-base percentage (.447) and tied for third in doubles (10).

Catching Depth

Tech senior Jed English was selected the catcher on the 2003 preseason All-BIG EAST team picked by the league coaches, while Hokie sophomore Wyatt Toregas was named the catcher on the preseason BIG EAST squad picked by Baseball America. English was named the designated hitter on the Baseball America team, but was still rated as having the best arm among the catchers in the league.

BIG EAST Championship Schedule

The BIG EAST Baseball Championship enters its 19th year in 2003. The championship has been the breeding ground of several major league baseball stars, including St. Louis Cardinal All-Star pitcher Matt Morris, San Francisco Giants All-Star standout Rich Aurilia and New York Mets slugger Mo Vaughn. St. John's has captured the most titles with five. Last year, Notre Dame won the championship with a 3-2, 10-inning victory over Rutgers. The winner of the tournament will receive the league's automatic bid to the NCAA Championship. The BIG EAST has sent three teams to the NCAAs each of the last four seasons. The BIG EAST Championship is held at Commerce Bank Park in Bridgewater, N.J.

The event will take place May 22-24, with the schedule as follows:

Thursday, May 22
Game 1 No. 1 seed vs. No. 4 seed (3:30 p.m.)
Game 2 No. 2 seed vs. No. 3 seed (7 p.m.)

HOKIES HOPING OPPOSITES ATTRACT IN 2003

The 2003 Virginia Tech baseball team is a study in opposites. On one hand, the Hokies return six starters in the field and their designated hitter from a team that shared the 2002 BIG EAST regular-season championship with Notre Dame. On the other hand, the Hokies must replace four pitchers who accounted for 47 of their 59 starts in 2002 and 24 of their 33 wins.

Luckily, Tech head coach Chuck Hartman is no stranger to challenges. In 24 seasons at Virginia Tech and 43 years on the collegiate level, he has seen his share. During that span, he has also produced over 1,300 wins.

"We are going to have a very experienced club from both an offensive and defensive standpoint," says Hartman, who will be inducted into the American Baseball Coaches Association Hall of Fame in January 2004. "The real question will be how our pitchers who were not main-liners last year will respond.

"We have some pitchers with excellent ability," he adds, "but when you start talking about three or four guys pitching for the first time at the college level, I'm sure you are going to see some peaks and valleys."

Keeping the valleys to a minimum will be the main objective of Hartman and his staff. They hope to get help from a strong nucleus of veteran players. Among those returning veterans are 2002 first-team BIG EAST shortstop Spencer Harris and first-team second baseman Marc Tugwell. Both players were also named to this year's preseason BIG EAST team, along with catcher Jed English. All three are seniors.

It doesn't hurt that the Hokies return six of their top seven hitters from last season, led by sophomore utility man Wyatt Toregas. Toregas, who had starts as a catcher, designated hitter and right fielder, batted .347 as a freshman in 2002. He contributed 15 doubles, four triples and eight home runs on the way to driving in 51 runs. He was a third-team All-BIG EAST selection. Tech's top run producer, senior center fielder Brad Bauder, is another key returnee. Bauder led the Hokies in doubles (21), home runs (14) and RBIs (60) last season. He was a third-team all-conference pick as a junior and a second-team selection as a sophomore.

Tech's other returning starters are senior Chris Winterfeldt, who started 47 games at first base, and sophomore Chris Stanton, who got 43 starts in the outfield. Top sophomore reserves — infielders David McDonald and Tom Blaszak and outfielder Matt Kalish — also return. McDonald started 16 games at first base, while Kalish got nine outfield starts and Blaszak picked up three starts at second base.

"We lost John West, who was our top hitter, and Chris Hutchison, who also contributed offensively," Hartman says. "But the rest of our lineup is a year older. Experience will be a big plus for us everywhere except on the mound."

Gone from last year's pitching staff are weekend starters Joe Saunders, Jason Bush and Chip Runyon. Another valuable four-year contributor, Pat Pinkman, is also gone. Together, the four players combined to pitch 328.1 innings during the 2002 season.

Saunders, a junior, was a first-round draft pick of the Anaheim Angels after posting three-straight nine-win seasons for the Hokies. Saunders was 9-2 in 2002 with a 2.86 earned run average and 102 strikeouts in 97.2 innings. Bush finished his four-year Tech career with a school record 31 victories, while Runyon, who served as everything from a starter to a closer during his career, had 16 career wins and five saves. Pinkman registered 19 wins and six saves during his time in Blacksburg.

Tech's new-look staff in 2003 will include nine newcomers, including seven freshmen. Among the six returning players are senior right-handed relievers Matt Dalton and Mike Crisci. Dalton was one of the top closers in the BIG EAST last season with nine saves, a 2-2 record and a 3.45 earned run average. Crisci, who will get a shot at a starting role this spring, was a key setup man and also contributed three saves.

"I think our bullpen will be strong with Matt Dalton returning," Hartman says. "We might be playing a lot of games where we ask our starter to get us six innings, let a setup man pitch two and then let Matt finish it off. I can see us doing that a lot of days.

"The big concern is if we can get quality starts out of four or five of our young pitchers," Hartman explains. "The ability is there. We've got good depth on the mound. We are just inexperienced."

Tech's returning pitchers had a combined total of just 14 starts a year ago, including only two in BIG

Notre Dame has been selected as the preseason favorite to capture the 2003 BIG EAST Baseball Championship in a vote of the league coaches. Virginia Tech, which shared last year's regular-season title with the Fighting Irish, was picked to finish second. Notre Dame junior second baseman Steve Sollmann was voted the preseason player of the year and sophomore right-hander Chris Lambert of Boston College was selected as the preseason pitcher of the year. Coaches were not permitted to vote for their own teams or players. Virginia Tech infielders Spencer Harris and Marc Tugwell and catcher Jed English were voted to the preseason All-BIG EAST Team.

The 11 BIG EAST baseball teams play in one division, facing a 26-game conference slate. The top four squads in the league will advance to the 2003 BIG EAST Championship at Commerce Bank Park in Bridgewater, N.J., on May 22-24.

EAST competition. Sophomore Jeff Landing got the most work of the returnees, pitching 45.2 innings in 14 appearances during the 2002 season. Landing started six games and posted a 3-2 record. Fellow sophomore Brett Cory had a 2-1 record and one save in 38.1 innings of work. He pitched in 20 games, three as a starter. Junior Josh Biber also posted three starts and a 2-1 record in '02, working a total of 29 innings.

The three returning right-handers will receive stiff challenges from newcomers for the open spots in the starting rotation. Junior right-hander Jake Chaney, a transfer from Charlotte, was the leading candidate for the No. 1 spot after fall practice. A bout with tendonitis during the off-season, however, may keep him out of action until the third week of the season. Talented true freshmen M.J. Hurley and Andrew Wells are also expected to make strong bids for starting jobs. Redshirt freshman Ryan Kennedy, who transferred to Tech from the University of Florida in January, could also be in the mix. Both Wells and Kennedy are left-handers.

Freshman right-hander Nicky Bowers, one of Tech's top performers in the fall, could make an impact as a reliever on this year's staff. Hard-throwing freshman walk-on Scott Stoehr and junior transfer Jay Musialowski also have a chance to become key contributors. The status of Adam Redd, another promising freshman, is uncertain following a bout with mononucleosis. The Hokies have already lost first-year pitcher Eddie Ashwell for the season due to elbow surgery.

The Tech pitching staff could receive a big boost if redshirt junior Seth Bandy returns to form after missing the 2002 season. Bandy, who underwent rotator cuff surgery in June 2001, would give the Hokies some welcome experience and another left-hander. He pitched 51.1 innings in 2000 as a freshman, compiling a 2-2 record and starting seven games. He started two games and worked just 16 innings before being sidelined in 2001.

"There is a lot of raw talent on our pitching staff," Hartman says. "It may take some trial and error to determine the starting rotation. It's going to be a matter of who shows they can compete under pressure. That's going to be the key."

Things are much more settled in the field where the Hokies have to replace West at third base and solidify their outfield around veteran center fielder Bauder.

Stanton, who started in the outfield last year as a freshman, is slated to replace West at third. During the summer, Stanton played shortstop for the Vienna (Va.) Mustangs and was named the MVP of the Clark Griffith Collegiate Baseball League. He impressed Tech's coaches with his work at third during the fall, showing good range and an outstanding arm. Stanton will be backed up by freshman Jeff Monaco, who was redshirted last season.

Stanton's move to third leaves the Hokies with two outfield spots to fill. Freshman Philip Beall, one of the biggest surprises of the fall, is the player to beat for Stanton's former left field job. Beall is an aggressive young player at the plate and in the be looking for added offense from McDonald, whose 18 hits last season included 10 that went for extra bases.

The Hokies have an outstanding catching rotation with English and Toregas. English, who hit .312 last season with 31 runs batted in, was picked the 2003 preseason BIG EAST catcher by the coaches. Toregas was named to the preseason BIG EAST team selected by Baseball America. Redshirt freshman David Londrey and true freshman Joe Daly are also on hand to provide added depth at the position.

Finding candidates for the designated hitter duties shouldn't be hard for Hartman and his staff, but deciding which candidate to use might be. One of their first choices may be the right-handed hitting Daly. The coaches can also choose from Toregas, McDonald, Bowers or English if they want a right-handed hitter. Kalish, Musialowski and Adams are available as left-handed hitters.

"I'm hoping we get the opportunity to use a lot of our young players before conference play begins," Hartman says. "Sometime during the season, I'm sure our youth is going to catch up with us, but we need to find out how good these young players really are.

"Overall, I think our offense will be as good or better than last year. I feel the same way about our defense. But day in, day out, I believe you can say that we will go as our pitching goes."

Hartman and his staff have been here before. The Tech skipper is expecting some bumps. He also knows that the end result can be well worth the challenge.

CHRIS STANTON WILL MOVE FROM THE OUTFIELD TO THIRD BASE THIS SPRING.

The right field spot vacated by Hutchison could develop into a platoon situation with Kalish sharing time with Bowers or Toregas. Freshman Joel Miller is also expected to get a look at the position. Kalish saw limited action last season, but has the potential to be a contributor with his glove and his bat. Both Bowers and Toregas are likely to be in the lineup somewhere to utilize their offensive potential. Right field is one of the options.

Toregas started 13 games in right last season and Bowers has the tools needed to be successful at the position.

Another outfield option will be redshirt senior Billy Hardee. Hardee, a three-year football letterman for the Hokies, joined the baseball team in January and is working hard to become a contributor.

"We'll go with Brad (Bauder) in center field and let him be the captain of the outfield," says Hartman. " I think Philip Beall exhibited a lot of talent during the fall. He has the arm to play any of the three outfield positions. Whoever steps forward and hits the ball well will probably get the other outfield spot."

Harris and Tugwell, who rank as the most prolific double-play combination in Tech history, will anchor the infield. Harris started every game last season and hit .292 with 40 runs batted in. Tugwell finished the 2002 season ranked third on the team in batting with a .342 average. He had five home runs, 47 RBIs and 12 stolen bases. Blaszak will provide depth at second, while Tugwell will likely be the top backup at shortstop.

Winterfeldt has developed into a solid defensive player at first base. He contributed a .306 batting average and 21 RBIs last year and will be looked to for improved numbers this spring. The Hokies will also

Even before the first pitch of the 2003 college baseball season is thrown, Virginia Tech head coach Chuck Hartman already stands as a big winner. In January, Hartman was notified that he had been selected for induction into the American Baseball Coaches Association Hall of Fame in January 2004.

The notification followed closely on the heels of Hartman's induction into the Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame in November, and is magnified by the fact that he is already a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Hall of Fame. He was inducted into the NAIA Hall in 1989 for his achievements at High Point College (now University), where he coached for 19 years before coming to Tech in 1979.

Hartman has attained every coach's dream. He has earned the highest recognition a coach can receive.

The Tech skipper's widespread recognition has come not only because he has been one of the best at winning on the playing field, but also because he has always been a credit to the game he loves when he's off the field. Hartman is entering his 25th season at Virginia Tech and his 44th season overall.

His 1,338 career wins rank him third among active Division I baseball coaches in victories and place him fourth all-time. Hartman's overall coaching record is 1,338-705-8, while his current record at Tech is 855-480-8.

Hartman and the Hokies have enjoyed some of their greatest success in recent years. Last season, Tech shared the regular-season BIG EAST Conference championship with Notre Dame. In 2001, the Hokies posted four wins against Notre Dame and finished second in the BIG EAST Tournament. Tech won the Atlantic 10 Conference Tournament in 2000, 1999 and 1997, earning a berth in an NCAA Regional each year. During the Hokies' 1997 NCAA appearance, Hartman's Tech baseball squad upset 10th-ranked Southern California in the opening game of the South II Regional. In 1996, Hartman was inducted into the Salem-Roanoke Baseball Hall of Fame and his Hokies won the A-10 West Division title. After directing the Hokies to a share of the 1995 Metro Conference regular-season championship, Hartman was voted the league's coach of the year. And in 1994, Hartman guided the Hokies to a Metro Tournament title and an NCAA bid.

One of the veteran coach's crowning achievements came in 1992 when he became just the ninth baseball coach in Division I history to win 1,000 games. The milestone victory came when Tech defeated Liberty University, 11-4, on April 27, and was sweetened by the fact it occurred during the Hokies' 100th year of baseball.

Hartman's success has been built on more than wins.

It has been built on his extensive knowledge of the game and his aggressive coaching style. It's been built on his personable, open-door approach as a "players' coach." It's been built on the respect and admiration he's earned as one of college baseball's top goodwill ambassadors.

Hartman's many contributions to baseball have been widely recognized. The Home Plate Club of the Washington (D.C.) metropolitan area has presented him a prestigious Lifetime Achievement in Baseball Award. He has also received the Willie Duke Lifetime Achievement Award presented by the Raleigh (N.C.) Hot Stove League. In 1986, Hartman was voted the Division I Baseball Coach of the Year in Virginia by the state college sports information directors, an honor he garnered again in 1992, 1993 and 1997. In 1989 and again in 1995, Hartman was named the Metro Conference Baseball Coach of the Year.

In 1984, Hartman was named to the coaching staff of the United States All-Star team that competed in the World Amateur Championships in Cuba. During the summer of 1985, he was in charge of the offense for the USA baseball team that toured Korea, Japan, the United States and played in the Intercontinental Cup in Canada.

During his tenure at Virginia Tech, Hartman has had five players compete for the United States in international competition and 10 players earn All-America honors. In the fall of 1991, Tech pitcher Brad Clontz competed in the inaugural USA Baseball Trials for Olympic candidates. Over Tech's 17-year association with the Metro Conference, 46 different Tech players earned All-Metro Conference honors under Hartman. In 1996, the Hokies' first season in the Atlantic 10 Conference, Tech outfielder Kevin Barker was the league's player of the year. Following the 1998 season, outfielder Matt Griswold earned the same honor and freshman pitcher Pat Pinkman was the league's rookie of the year. In 1999, Tech freshman pitcher Jason Bush was the A-10 rookie of the year. Tech players were named the MVP of the Atlantic 10 Championships in 1999 and 2000.

During his coaching career, Hartman has had four players drafted in the first round (three of whom were not drafted out of high school) and a total of 75 players sign with the pros, including 51 at Tech. One of his Tech players, pitcher Brad DuVall, was a first-round pick in 1987 and '88.

As a player, Hartman made his mark at the University of North Carolina through determination and hard work. He graduated from UNC in 1957 with a B.A. in physical education and earned a master's degree in education from Carolina a year later.

In 1958, Hartman landed a job as tennis coach and assistant basketball coach at High Point College. He also helped out in baseball, where, in the middle of the 1959 season, the head coach resigned.

When Hartman assumed the head coaching duties, High Point had won just eight games in the previous three seasons. By his sixth year, the Panthers won the Carolinas Conference championship, the first baseball title ever for the school.

Before he left High Point to move to Tech in 1979, Hartman directed his teams to 10 conference titles, five district championships and twice led a team to the NAIA National Tournament. His High Point clubs posted nine consecutive seasons of 30 wins or more, and six of his players earned All-America recognition.

Hartman was named the Carolinas Conference Coach of the Year five times, District 26 Coach of the Year six times and the NAIA Area VII Coach of the Year in 1976. He was named to the Gaston (N.C.) County Hall of Fame in 1979.

In his first four seasons at Tech, Hartman directed the Hokies to three state championships before the competition was discontinued. His 1981 squad won a school-record 48 games, only to be outdone by his 1982 and 1985 teams, which each registered 50 victories.

Three of Hartman's Tech teams have finished the season ranked in the national polls. The 1981 team was ranked 20th by Baseball America and 29th by Collegiate Baseball. The Hokies' 1982 team finished ninth in the Baseball America poll, while the 1985 squad was rated 24th by the same publication. Hartman's Tech teams have won 30 or more games in 20 of his 24 seasons at the school and 40 or more games on six occasions. Fifteen of Tech's last 22 teams have hit .300 or better.

Tech has finished second nationally in home runs on three occasions during Hartman's tenure — 1982, 1986 and 1988. The Hokies have finished among the top 12 teams in homers eight times under Hartman and have finished nationally ranked in scoring six times and slugging percentage four times. Hartman's 1981 Tech team ranked fourth nationally in batting and third in both home runs and scoring. In 1995, the Hokies finished the season ranked 12th in home runs, 15th in fielding percentage and 22nd in double plays.

Hartman is married to the former Ellen Eaves of High Point. He is an avid golfer, hunter and fisherman, and was a collegiate basketball official for more than 20 years before retiring in 1987.

Jay Phillips ▸ Assistant Coach

Jay Phillips, whose work on the recruiting trails has helped Virginia Tech to four NCAA appearances and championships in three different conferences during the past nine years, is entering his 12th season as a full-time assistant on Coach Chuck Hartman's staff. Phillips' duties include coordinating the Hokies' recruiting efforts, coaching the infielders and overseeing the overall defense.

"Jay works extremely hard in recruiting and has a broad knowledge of infield play," says Hartman. "He also has a lot to do with the closeness and camaraderie we've had on our teams. His greatest assets are his enthusiasm and his ability to communicate with people. He was an outstanding player at Tech and now he is an outstanding coach here."
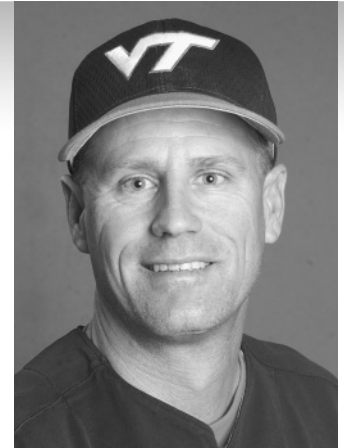

Defensively, the Hokies have fielded .960 or better as a team in seven of Phillips' 11 seasons. During the 2001 season, Tech finished second in the BIG EAST Conference in fielding with a .965 mark and led the league in double plays with 63. In 2000, Tech set a school record for double plays with 66. The 1996 Hokies led the Atlantic 10 Conference with a fielding mark of .961, while during the 1995 season, Tech turned 61 double plays and ranked 15th nationally with a school-record .968 team fielding percentage.

Phillips was a four-year letterman and three-year starter for Hartman at Tech from 1979 through 1982. The Fairfax, Va., native earned All-Metro Conference honors at third base as a sophomore, before moving to second base for his last two seasons. He hit .338 during his Tech career and still ranks fourth among the Hokies' all-time stolen base leaders with 82. Tech compiled a 156-50 record during Phillips' four years, including a 98-18 record over his last two seasons.

Phillips was drafted by the Kansas City Royals in 1982 and spent three years in the Royals' organization and one in the Milwaukee Brewers' system. He returned to Tech as a graduate assistant on the coaching staff for the 1987-88 school year. He was an assistant coach at Oakton High School for one season before moving to George Mason University as an assistant in June 1989. Phillips was a member of the GMU staff for two years prior to accepting his current position at Tech in August 1991.

Phillips, who holds a bachelor's degree in history from Tech, is married to the former Kathy Morris of Newport News, Va. They have a daughter, Jordan, 16, and a son, Joey, 12.

Jon Hartness ▸ Assistant Coach

Jon Hartness is entering his 13th season on Coach Chuck Hartman's staff at Virginia Tech. Hartness, who coached Tech's pitchers for nine years, is in his second season working with the Hokies' hitters. He also coaches the outfielders.

Last year, under Hartness' watchful eye, Tech led the BIG EAST in batting during conference games with a .323 team average. The Hokies hit .312 overall for the season and were second in the conference in runs scored. Five of the team's seven non-freshman starters turned in their best offensive seasons.

"Every time Jon has taken on a new duty at Virginia Tech he has been successful," says Hartman, who works with the pitchers. "He did a good job with our outfielders when he first joined the staff and he has done an outstanding job with our pitchers. Now we are hoping his work with our hitters will help our offense become more productive."

Hartness, a former pitcher for Hartman and the Hokies, joined the Tech coaching staff in 1990 and coached the outfielders. In 1991, he took on the added responsibility of setting the Hokies' defense during games. The following year, he began working primarily with Tech's pitching staff.

During his nine years as pitching coach, Hartness worked with first-round draft picks Joe Saunders and Denny Wagner. He also worked with Tech's top-winning left-hander, Brian Fitzgerald, and top-winning right-hander, Jason Bush, as well as the Hokies' all-time strikeout leader, Jon Hand, and career saves record-holder, Charlie Gillian. Gillian was a freshman All-American in 1994 and a third-team All-American in 1996. Pat Pinkman earned freshman All-America honors in 1998, Bush followed suit in 1999 and Saunders became the Hokies' third-straight freshman A-A pick in 2000.

As a player at Tech, Hartness was a four-year letterman for Hartman. He finished his collegiate pitching career with 14 wins, eight losses and nine saves, and held a share of the school single-season record for pitching appearances (28) until 1994. As a sophomore in '85, he pitched a nine-inning no-hitter, beating Utica College, 1-0.

The Richmond, Va., native saw members of his pitching staff duplicate that feat three times. Fitzgerald no-hit James Madison during the 1995 season, then three Tech pitchers combined for another nine-inning no-hitter against Howard in 1996. During the 2000 season, Bush hurled a seven-inning no-hitter against LaSalle.

Hartness, who holds a B.S. in sports management from Tech, is married to the former Connie Thomas of Roanoke, Va. They have a son, Jared Thomas, 12, and a daughter, Taylor Grace, 10.

Javier Solis ▸ Volunteer Coach

Javier Solis, a former shortstop at Hardin-Simmons University, is entering his first season as a volunteer coach on the Virginia Tech baseball staff. Solis will serve as the Hokies' bullpen coach.

A native of Fort Worth, Texas, Solis was a four-year starter (1995-98) for Coach Steve Coleman at Hardin-Simmons. After earning his degree in exercise science in 1998, Solis remained at his alma mater as a graduate assistant coach. He worked with the team's infielders during the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

Following the 2000 season, Solis moved to a full-time assistant coaching job on the junior college level at Vernon College in Vernon, Texas. Recruiting and working with the hitters and outfielders were among his duties at Vernon, where he spent two seasons before moving to Tech.

Solis is married to the former Julie Reynaud of Baton Rouge, La.

Lawrence, who is certified by the National Trainers Association, began working at Tech in 1979 as a graduate assistant trainer for football, basketball, baseball and wrestling. He was promoted to assistant trainer in 1981 and coordinated the training duties for all men's sports except football for 19 seasons. Lawrence is beginning his 24th season working with Tech baseball.

Moving forward and exploring new horizons has been the norm rather than the exception for the BIG EAST Conference since opening its doors in 1979.

The BIG EAST became a reality on May 31, 1979, following a meeting of athletic directors from Providence College, St. John's, Georgetown and Syracuse Universities. Seton Hall, Connecticut and Boston College completed the original seven-school alliance.

After one season, Villanova was added and began play in 1980-81. Two seasons later, Pittsburgh joined the group and started competition in '82-83.

Miami was admitted in 1990 and began BIG EAST competition in '91-92. Rutgers, West Virginia and Notre Dame joined in '94 in two separate expansions and began play in 1995-96. In 1999, Virginia Tech became the league's 14th member. The Hokies began competing as a full member of the BIG EAST in 2000-2001. Tech was a charter member of the BIG EAST Football Conference when it was formed in 1991.

While the membership has increased, the focus of the BIG EAST remains unchanged. It is a group that reflects a tradition of broad-based programs, led by administrators and coaches who place a constant emphasis on academic integrity. The BIG EAST Conference has enjoyed a leadership role nationally. Its student-athletes own significantly high graduation rates and their record of scholastic achievement notably reflects a balance between intercollegiate athletics and academics.

Any successful consortium enjoys outstanding leadership. Michael Tranghese, the league's first full-time employee, and for 11 years member BIG EAST Football Conference, which became a major player in college football immediately after its inception.

BIG EAST sports attract the interest of followers in the nation's largest media markets including New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, D.C., Miami, Pittsburgh and Hartford. The league has long been considered a leader in innovative concepts in promotion and publicity, particularly regarding television. Those efforts have resulted in unparalleled visibility for BIG EAST student-athletes.

More than 475 BIG EAST athletes have earned All-America recognition and dozens have won individual NCAA national championships. The BIG EAST has been well represented on U.S. or foreign national and Olympic teams.

The BIG EAST has its headquarters in Providence where the conference administers to more than 5,000 athletes in 23 sports.

The 2001 season marked the Virginia Tech baseball program's first year of competition in the BIG EAST Conference.

Tech accepted full membership in the BIG EAST in 1999 and began competition in the fall of 2000. The move fulfilled a long-time desire to bring all of the Hokies' sports, including football, into the same conference. Tech was a charter member of the BIG EAST Football Conference when it formed in 1991.

The Hokies ended a beneficial five-year affiliation with the Atlantic 10 Conference in May of 2000. During Tech's membership in the A-10, the baseball team advanced to the league championship game every season and won three tournament titles. As a first-year member of the BIG EAST, the Hokies advanced to the conference tournament where they won two games against nationally-ranked Notre Dame before losing to Seton Hall in the championship round. Last season, the Hokies tied Notre Dame for the league's regular-season championship.

The BIG EAST Conference has enjoyed several milestones in its 18 years of baseball action. The league has been showcased as one of the top baseball conferences in the nation and a breeding ground for future professional talent. Following are a few of the highlights from the league's first 18 seasons of baseball competition:

The first game between two BIG EAST teams was played on March 16, 1985, when Providence traveled to Villanova. The Wildcats won, 8-1, but the game did not count in the league standings.

Only games between division opponents affected the standings for the first five years of the conference. The first BIG EAST contests took place two weeks later, the weekend of March 30. Dave Ford of UConn was named the first Player of the Year after leading the league in batting with a .522 average, a BIG EAST record that still stands. Seton Hall finished with a league-best 15-3 mark, but it was St. John's that won the conference tournament. Tony Bonura hit his first home run of the season in the 11th inning of the final game for a 7-6 SJU win.

St. John's defended its BIG EAST tournament championship by defeating Providence in successive games for the title. With its back against the wall after falling to the Friars in game one, SJU exploded for 15-5 and 13-4 victories for the crown.

After falling short of the NCAA Tournament in the first two BIG EAST seasons, Seton Hall made sure it didn't happen again by posting a 45-10 record. The Pirates stormed through a 16-2 regular season, winning their first BIG EAST Championship.

BIG EAST Player of the Year Marteese Robinson enjoyed one of the greatest seasons in history, leading the nation in batting (.529) and hits (126), while posting 90 RBIs and 58 stolen bases. He shared Collegiate Baseball's national Player of the Year award with Oklahoma State's Robin Ventura. Teammate Craig Biggio was first in the country in runs per game (1.76), while the Pirates' Mo Vaughn smashed a league-record 13 homers in BIG EAST play. Charles Nagy of Connecticut was the BIG EAST Pitcher of the Year, the first of two straight awards for the Husky hurler.

Villanova captured its first division title with a league-best 16-2 record, but St. John's won its third tournament crown in four years with a 5-0 win over the 'Cats in the championship game. St. John's went on to beat defending and eventual national champion Stanford, 5-3, in NCAA Championship regional action.

1989

Providence and Seton Hall captured the divisions, but it was Villanova that earned the tourney crown. The Wildcats scored 29 runs in three BIG EAST Championship wins for their first title. VU represented the conference well in the NCAA Championship, finishing second in its region with wins over East Carolina, Georgia Tech and Central Florida. It was the final season for Seton Hall's Mo Vaughn, who remains the BIG EAST career leader in home runs (26) and RBIs (83) in league play.

1990

The BIG EAST switched to one eight-team conference after five years of divisional play. Every team would now play a three-game round robin schedule against all conference opponents. Seton Hall righty Jeff DiNuzzo made BIG EAST history on April 2, becoming the first pitcher to throw a no-hitter in league play in a 1-0 victory over UConn. He was one error away from a perfect game. The Pirates captured another regular season crown, but it was Connecticut that won the tournament.

St. John's stormed through the season, setting a BIG EAST record with 18

league victories. The year also saw the longest game in BIG EAST regular-season history, as Providence and Seton Hall dueled for 16 innings with the Friars prevailing, 10-5. Villanova surprised the Redmen in the tournament, winning its last four games, including a 12-3 victory over SJU in the championship game. For the first time in BIG EAST history, the league sent two teams to the NCAA Tournament as St. John's earned an at-large bid.

The Redmen defended their BIG EAST title by going 14-5 in league play. In one of the most exciting BIG EAST Championships ever, it was Providence that earned the tourney crown and automatic NCAA bid. Five of seven games were decided by three runs or less, including PC's 5-3 win in the title game.

1993

In one of the wildest regular seasons in BIG EAST history, five of the top six teams finished within two games with Championship seeds not being decided until the final day. In the postseason, SJU's pitching carried it to the title. For the second time in three seasons, the BIG EAST received two spots in the NCAA field as Connecticut earned an at-large bid. St. John's turned in a strong performance in the West Regional, winning three games before falling to top seed Arizona State in the final.

Despite being picked to finish sixth by the league's head coaches in the preseason, Pittsburgh streaked to the regular season crown with a 16-5 record. Speed was the key, as Pittsburgh set a BIG EAST record with 88 stolen bases in 20 league games. For the second time in the '90's, Connecticut was the team to step up in the Championship, topping Seton Hall in the final. The Pirates had something to be proud of on draft day, as righty Matt Morris was the 12th selection overall by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Another sixth-place prediction, Pittsburgh, beat top seed Providence twice and No. 2 seed Seton Hall once in the tourney to earn its first BIG EAST title. For the third time in the '90's, the BIG EAST sent two teams to the NCAAs when Providence earned an at-large selection.

1996

The '96 season brought a new look to BIG EAST baseball, as the league welcomed three new members — Notre Dame, Rutgers and West Virginia. In the newly-expanded six-team BIG EAST Championship, WVU won four games for the title. The league sent two teams to the NCAA Championship when the Fighting Irish joined the Mountaineers in the postseason.

After being picked to win its division, St. John's was edged out by a half game by West Virginia in the final standings. The Red Storm took out their frustration at the BIG EAST Championship, becoming the first team to go 4-0 en route to the title. The BIG EAST banner was also flying high on draft day, as two players were picked in the top 11 overall. Jason Grilli of Seton Hall was No. 4 overall by the San Francisco Giants, while West Virginia's Chris Enochs was tabbed 11th by the Oakland A's. The BIG EAST was the only conference in the country with two players picked in the top 11.

1998

Rutgers stormed to a league-best 17-3 record. The excitement continued for RU in the BIG EAST Championship, as the Knights battled intra-state rival Seton Hall in a 17-inning marathon in the tourney's first game. Rutgers prevailed, 9-6. The Knights went on to capture the tournament crown before defeating nationally-ranked Auburn in the NCAAs.

For the first time in league history three teams — Providence, Notre Dame and Rutgers — earned NCAA bids. In addition, the Fighting Irish became the first team to host NCAA play, with three teams traveling to South Bend for an NCAA sub-regional. The Friars, however, were the story in conference action. Picked to finish seventh in the preseason, PC put together an 18-8 league record. PC then went 4-1 in the BIG EAST Championship, winning its second title in the final season of baseball at the school. In addition, the Friars became the first team in conference history to win all the major postseason honors. Providence fell to eventual national runner-up Florida State in the NCAAs, but not before posting 49 wins.

Once again, three squads claimed NCAA bids — Notre Dame, Rutgers and Seton Hall. The Scarlet Knights also became the second BIG EAST team to host an NCAA sub-regional after claiming the conference's regular season and tournament titles. However, it was the Irish who experienced the most postseason success, winning two elimination games before falling to sub-regional host Mississippi State.

2001

For the first time in league history three teams advanced to regional finals in the NCAAs. Notre Dame, Seton Hall and Rutgers combined for a 7-6 record in NCAA regional action, with each school contributing at least two wins. The seven postseason victories were the most-ever for the league in one year. Regular-season champion Seton Hall defeated Virginia Tech, 5-2, to win its first BIG EAST tournament title since 1987. Twenty-two players from the league were selected in the amateur baseball draft.

Notre Dame became the first team in BIG EAST history to advance to the College World Series. The Fighting Irish, who won the conference tournament and shared the regular-season title with Virginia Tech, finished fifth in Omaha.

109 Seasons of Virginia Tech Baseball

They've been playing the game of baseball in these mountains for a long time. It's been played on the Drill Field and in a bandbox called Tech Park. Players with names like "Boots" and "Hooks" cleared the pebbles on the infield dirt for guys named Jim Stewart and Franklin Stubbs. They played as members of the Corps of Cadets and as members of the Pamplin School of Business. R.B. Prince coached the Orange and Maroon when V.P.I. won the South Atlantic championship. Coach Red Laird swapped fishing stories and made a young man named Johnny Oates lose weight. And a fiesty skipper named Chuck Hartman came to Blacksburg in 1979 and still calls it home — 855 wins later. From "Jockey" Kircher, to fly balls off the left fielder's head, to windy Blacksburg springs, these mountains have stories to tell — over 100 years of stories.

Virginia Tech had a baseball nine before it even had the name Virginia Polytechnic Institute. In the spring of 1892, cadets playing for the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College bumped over a Brush Mountain trail to play an outfit called the Newports. The cadets representing V.A.M.C. defeated the Newports, 18-8. By 1894, class baseball teams and rivalries within the Corps were established. These Corps teams supplied players to the varsity squad.

Up to the early 1960s, most members of Virginia Tech's student body were in the Corps of Cadets. But, with or without life in the barracks, Virginia Tech baseball has had its share of success.

The 1915 club won the South Atlantic championship by posting a 21-0 record, the only undefeated season ever in the sport. The team captain, Skinny Bruce, hit a team-leading .474 and fielded 1.000 at his left field post, which earned him a trip to Washington to play with the Senators. In the Washington and Lee game that year, Tech was down 8-3 going into the ninth, but scored five runs to tie, including three on a home run by shortstop Jimmy Powell. The Hokies won in the 10th. A pitcher named Ernest King Bibb hurled a one-hit, 3-0 shutout of Hampden-Sydney to open the season and closed it with a two-hit, 1-0 blanking of Roanoke College to keep Tech's record perfect. "Boots" Williams knocked in the only run.

The first Tech team to reach the NCAA baseball playoffs was Coach Red Laird's 1954 club. Virginia Tech went 12-6 during the regular season and eliminated Clemson in the first round of the NCAA tournament by winning, 11-10, at Clemson and knocking off the Tigers, 7-1, in Blacksburg. The team then traveled to Winter Park, Fla., where it lost two, 3-0 and 9-3, to Rollins College to be dropped from the tournament. That Hokie squad was led by catcher Howie Wright, who batted .366 and stole 20 bases, and outfielder Leo Burke, who hit .333 and later went on to play for four major league teams, including the Chicago Cubs. Burke credited part of the team's success to a slick-fielding keystone combination of shortstop Bobby Scruggs and second-baseman Jimmy Clarke. Burke also talked of riding in station wagons to games and, as driver of one of the wagons, never failing to stop by the local Dairy Queen for ice cream.

The school's next sweet season came in 1969 when the Laird-coached Tech squad went 26-5 and was invited to the NCAA playoffs in Gastonia, N.C. There, the Hokies beat Furman before losing to Mississippi and North Carolina to finish with a 27-7 ledger. Senior pitcher Steve Pittman went 6-0 and Dean Hahn posted a 5-0 record and hit .367 while playing first base. Junior Eddy Oates went 7-2 on the mound and also hit .313. Outfielder Steve Rosson also swung a big stick for Tech, hitting .343.

The diamond Hokies' next trip to the NCAA tournament was in 1976 under Coach Bob Humphreys. Tech went 33-7 during the regular season and six regulars, led by outfielder Sandy Hill at .351, batted over .300. Paul Adams supplied power with 10 homers and 55 RBIs. Wayne Shelton, the cornerstone of Humphreys' NCAA teams, swung a .321 stick. The Hokies lost two one-run games in the Atlantic Regionals, a 10-inning 7-6 loss to South Carolina and a 5-4 nail-biter to Furman.

Humphreys stressed pitching and defense during his five-year stint as the Hokies' head coach and produced a 69.2 winning percentage. His teams stood in contrast to the power-hitting lineups that Coach Chuck Hartman coached in the early 1980s. Led by sluggers Franklin Stubbs, Billy Plante, George Canale and Trey McCoy, the Hammerin' Hokies took full advantage of the cozy confines of Tech Park during the decade of the 1980s. Stubbs hit 29 dingers for Tech in 1981 to lead the nation and tie the NCAA record at that time for home runs in a season. Loyal Hokie fans remember Stubbs as a mobile power hitter who just missed becoming the first 30-30 player in Division I history. The first baseman stole 34 bases in addition to his 29 homers, to lead the team to a 48-9 mark.

The next season, third baseman Jim Stewart, who hit 18 home runs and drove in 68 runs, joined Stubbs as an All-American. That 1982 Hokie nine became the first Tech team to win 50 games in a season and had seven of its members — Stubbs, Stewart, Brian Rupe, Jay Phillips, Ray Perkins, Jimmy Foit and Mark Krynitsky, sign pro contracts. Coach Hartman's teams rolled up 398 wins in the 1980s, won 71 percent of their games and three times finished the season ranked in the Top 20. During the 1987 season, Hartman became Tech's winningest coach.

In 1989, Hartman and the Hokies moved to spacious English Field, a classy new baseball-only facility at the southwest corner of campus. The deeper fences of the new field would cause a decline in Tech's power numbers but not in the program's success.

The 1994 team was bumping along through a rebuilding year. Hartman's young team was 28-23 after concluding the regular season. Then, faster than you could say Brian Fitzgerald, the Hokies were champions and headed to the NCAA Tournament. Tech used outstanding pitching and solid defense to capture its first-ever Metro Conference Tournament title.

The Hokies were seeded sixth in the '94 Metro Tournament on the basis of their 8-9 record in conference play. The Tech nine met No. 3 seed South Florida in the first round. Fitzgerald, the team's sophomore ace, pitched a two-hit, complete-game shutout as Tech won 2-0. Next came No. 2 seed Southern Mississippi. Third baseman Bo Durkac doubled, tripled and drove in two runs to lead the offensive attack, and Ron Preston pitched into the ninth inning as the Hokies won 6-

4. Senior Rob Gibson continued Tech's mound heroics with a stellar performance against UNC Charlotte, the tournament's No. 1 seed. Gibson allowed just one hit in a 4-1 Tech win.

Tulane stalled Tech's drive to the title by knocking off the Hokies, 6-3, on the final day of the event in Louisville, Ky. The Green Wave's win set up a championship game between the two teams. Tulane jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the second inning of the title game, but the Hokies fought back. By the end of the fifth inning Tech had taken the lead, and Fitzgerald and reliever Charlie Gillian made it stand up for a 5-3 victory. The championship earned Tech a spot in the NCAA East Region where it lost to Auburn and all-time NCAA strikeout leader John Powell, 7-0, and fell to The Citadel, 4-3.

Tech moved from the Metro to the Atlantic 10 Conference in 1996 and preceded to win conference titles and NCAA trips in three of its five seasons in the league. Catcher Barry Gauch led the Hokies to the A-10 tournament championship in 1997. Tech marched to the title with three straight wins, including two against defending champion UMass. The Hokies hit .364 as a team in the tourney and scored 38 runs, including 25 during the first three innings of their games. Tech never trailed during the three-day event. Gauch had three home runs and nine RBIs to win MVP honors.

The Hokies registered one of the biggest wins in school history at the NCAA South II Regional in '97 when they defeated 10th-ranked Southern Cal, 3-2. Senior Matt Reynolds hit two solo home runs and junior pitcher Denny Wagner went the distance to spark the victory. It was the Hokies' first-ever win over a Top 10 foe during NCAA Tournament competition. The following year, the Trojans returned to win the College World Series and earn the national championship.

Tech won two games on the last day of the 1999 A-10 Championships to earn another NCAA regional trip. Tournament MVP Larry Bowles contributed 10 hits, 14 RBIs, two home runs and a 12-strikeout, complete-game pitching victory during the conference event. The Hokies repeated as champions again in 2000 behind an MVP performance by outfielder Addison Bowman.

The following year, Virginia Tech made another conference move, becoming fulltime members of the BIG EAST. It didn't take Hartman and his Tech nine long to become comfortable in their new home. The Hokies advanced to the finals of the BIG EAST Championships during their first season in the league and shared the conference's regular-season title with Notre Dame in 2002.

Pitcher Joe Saunders, who posted three straight nine-win seasons during that stretch, became Tech's highest pick in the Major League Baseball amateur draft following the 2002 season. The Anaheim Angels took the junior left-hander with the 12th pick of the first round.

Another junior, outfielder Brad Bauder, also made headlines in 2002. Bauder had one of the greatest games in collegiate history when he went 8-for-8 against Georgetown, hitting for the cycle and contributing four home runs, seven runs scored, 14 RBIs and 23 total bases.

Up until the 1970s, the team was comprised mostly of members of the student body who had been recruited for other sports or tried out for the baseball team of their own volition. Many baseball players were multiple-sport athletes. In 1902, future College Football Hall of Fame inductee Hunter Carpenter played on the gridiron in the fall and the diamond in the spring. Al Casey in the 1930s starred in football, track and baseball. Harry Bushkar was recruited on a football scholarship in the early 1940s and played football, basketball and baseball before signing with the Yankees' organization. In the 1950s, Howie Wright was a standout catcher on Tech's 1954 NCAA baseball team and a star halfback on the Hokies' unbeaten and nationally-ranked 1954 football team.

During the 70s, Tech's baseball program was expanded and the head coach no longer doubled as the assistant football or basketball coach as men like Mac McEver and Red Laird had done for many years. With one sport to concentrate on and an increased budget, coaches Humphreys and Hartman were free to spend more time on the recruiting trails. The move paid off. Since 1974 when Humphreys began his five-year coaching stint, Tech baseball has averaged 34 wins a year and has had just one losing season.

Tech's longest conference affiliation began in 1921 when the Hokies became a charter member of the Southern Conference. During the early years, the conference was composed of most of the teams that now make up the Southeastern Conference and the ACC. Tech remained in the league until June 1965, when it withdrew to become an independent. The Hokies played baseball as an independent until joining the Metro Conference after the 1978 season.

When Tech joined the Southern Conference, the baseball team was still playing its home games on an area that was part of what is now the Drill Field. The area was first called Sheib Field, and later Gibboney Field. After it was re-graded and enlarged in 1909, it was tabbed Miles Field. In 1926, Miles Stadium was constructed behind the War Memorial Gym and became the home for football, track and baseball. It wasn't until 1955 that the baseball team got a home of its very own. Tech Park, which eventually became nestled between Cassell Coliseum and Lane Stadium, had both dugouts and home run fences. Coach Hartman believes the ball jumped out of Tech Park particularly well to right field and is an expert witness after coaching Stubbs, Plante, Canale and McCoy, all of whom hit more than 20 home runs in a single season.

One former Hokie who was still plying his craft in the pros when Stubbs first started banging down the walls in Blacksburg was former Baltimore and Texas manager, Johnny Oates. Oates came to Tech looking for an education and a win over VMI. He left with a pro contract and a win over an Alabama team that had as a member Kenny Stabler. In fact, Oates' pro career may not have come to fruition if not for stern words from Coach Laird. After coming to Tech, Oates' playing weight ballooned from his normal 185 to 215. Oates remembers Laird summoning him to his office and asking the youngster in a sarcastic tone if Oates wanted to let a chance at a pro career slip away. After a winter of wrestling and running, Oates returned to his normal playing weight.

Oates played much of his sophomore season in 1966 with an injured heel. Before a home game with UNC that year, Laird struck a gentlemen's agreement with Tar Heel coach Walter Rabb, an old fishing buddy, that would allow a pinch-runner for Oates every time he reached base yet still allow the Tech standout to remain in the game as the catcher. During the first eight innings of the game, Oates walked three times and singled twice. His pinch-runner, Mike Knight, scored five times. In the bottom of the ninth inning, Oates hit a three-run homer to give the Hokies a 15-14 victory.

There are other stories of what it was like to play baseball at Virginia Tech. Outfielder Wilson Bell never forgot being hit in the head by a fly ball and having his center fielder toss him a glove for 'noggin' use only. Chuck Hartman fondly remembers two streakers on a motorcycle zipping behind the outfield fence during a game at Tech Park.

There are plenty of baseball stories in these mountains and plenty more still to be written.

Special thanks to Ed Moore, who did the initial research and writing for this story in 1992.

Since Virginia Tech fielded its first baseball team in 1892, the Hokies have compiled an overall record of 1,724 victories, 1,118 losses and 26 ties in 109 seasons (no teams in 1894 and 1899) — a winning percentage of .607. Over the last 40 years, Tech has suffered just two losing seasons, and during Coach Chuck Hartman's 24 years at the helm, the Hokies have averaged 36 wins a season.

Following is a year-by-year look at Tech's results under Hartman:

Tech Adapts To Current Challenges

Since its founding in 1872, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, popularly known as Virginia Tech, has grown from a small college of 132 students into Virginia's largest university and its top research institution. During its 130 years of existence, Virginia's premiere land-grant institution has grown into a comprehensive university of national and international prominence.

President Charles W. Steger has challenged the university to become one of the country's top 30 research institutions by the end of the decade. Even before Steger's challenge, Tech had begun moving in that direction and is now ranked 51st in the nation.

Among recent research innovations, Tech teamed with Wake Forest University to establish the Virginia Tech-Wake Forest University School of Biomedical Engineering and Sciences to offer M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in biomedical engineering (BME) and to be the focus of collaborative research. The university's Virginia Bioinformatics Institute is leading the way in helping scientists merge computers and biotechnology to sort through complicated genetic material to speed research. And the university's partnership with the University of Virginia and Carilion Health System to form the Carilion Biomedical Institute is improving health care worldwide and increasing economic development opportunities in Southwest Virginia.

Virginia Tech was established as an all-male military school dedicated to the original land-grant mission of teaching agriculture and engineering. Today, the co-educational institution, which operates a European studies center based in Switzerland and educational, research, and outreach/Extension facilities throughout Virginia, has recognized programs in music, business, architecture, and the humanities, as well as its traditional strengths in the sciences, engineering, and technology.

While participation in the Virginia Tech Corps of Cadets is now voluntary, the corps, which has approximately 700 cadets, remains a proud tradition of the university. Virginia Tech is one of only two universities in the nation with a military component inside a larger civilian population.

Although Virginia Tech is currently organized into eight colleges – Agriculture and Life Sciences, Architecture and Urban Studies, Arts and Sciences, Pamplin College of Business, Engineering, Human Resources and Education, Natural Resources, and Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine – plans are under way to restructure the university and add a College of Biological, Mathematical, and Physical Sciences. Together, the colleges offer about 175 bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degree programs to approximately 26,000 students, who hail from countries throughout the world.

The university's 2,600-acre main campus is home to more than 100 buildings, hundreds of research laboratories, the Donaldson Brown Hotel and Conference Center, and an ▸ Eight colleges – with a ninth approved – and a graduate school

▸ 60+ bachelor's degree programs
▸ 115 master's and doctoral degree programs
▸ 15:1 student-faculty ratio
▸ Main campus includes 100 buildings, 2,600 acres of land, and an airport
▸ Computing and communications complex for worldwide information access
▸ Currently ranked 51st among the nation's research institutions

Student Population
▸ The most popular majors for incoming first year students in the fall of 2002 were engineering, university studies, business, computer science, biology, communication studies, animal poultry science, psychology, architecture, and marketing.
▸ 118 countries and 48 states, plus Washington, D. C., the Virgin Islands, and Puerto Rico are represented in the student population. 59 percent of the student population is male, while 41 percent is female.

airport. Adjoining the campus is the 120-acre Corporate Research Center, home to more than 100 companies that take advantage of the university's research and faculty expertise. Within five miles of campus is a 1,700-acre research farm.

Virginia Tech follows the dictates of its motto, Ut Prosim ("That I May Serve"), focusing on its land-grant missions of instruction, research, and solving the problems of society through outreach and Extension activities. Through the generation of new knowledge and the outreach mandate, the university disseminates practical knowledge through the classroom and to society as a whole. It is a university that puts knowledge to work.

Instruction

Tech's eight colleges offer more degree programs than any other university in the state, with 61 undergraduate and 115 graduate programs. In addition, the university is one of the nation's leaders in integrating instructional technology into the curriculum, requiring all entering students to have a computer.

Research

With annual research expenditures of about $216 million, Virginia Tech consistently ranks about 50th among research universities in the United States. With more than 100 research centers, the university also consistently ranks among the top institutions in industry-supported research and in the top 10 in the number of patents issued each year.

Outreach

Virginia Tech is involved in a multitude of projects as part of its outreach mission.

Outreach efforts also focus on education and distance learning techniques – satellite videoconferencing, multimedia, interactive video, interactive computer conferencing, and web-based courses, for example – to meet the various needs of working adults and other nontraditional students. Professionals, organizations, and communities also tap Virginia Tech's vast resources, expertise, and research results through the Division of Continuing Education, which offers hundreds of programs annually.

What Is a Hokie?

One of the most frequently asked questions in Virginia Tech athletics is "What is a Hokie?"

The story leads back to 1896 when Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College changed its name to Virginia Polytechnic Institute. With the name change came the necessity for a new cheer, and a contest was held by the student body. Senior O.M. Stull won first prize for his "Hokie" yell, which was first used that fall and is still heard today. Later, when asked if "Hokie" had any special meaning, Stull explained that the word was solely the product of his imagination. He put it in his cheer because he thought it sounded good. It soon became a nickname for all Tech students.

The official university colors — Chicago maroon and burnt orange — were also introduced in 1896. The colors were chosen by a committee because they made a "unique combination" not worn elsewhere at the time.

Charles W. Steger ▸ University President

When Charles W. Steger became Virginia Tech's 15th president in January 2000, it did not take long for this three-time Hokie alum to turn it up a notch. Setting his sights on joining the nation's truly elite universities, President Steger has challenged the university community to become ranked among the top 30 research universities.

The signature initiative of his administration likely will be the Virginia Bioinformatics Institute, a new interdisciplinary research center formed by the convergence of computer science and biological research. Populated by world class researchers, the VBI already has built a contract base of more than $20 million.

Saying that future growth will come only through strategic partnerships, Steger led the formation of the World Institute for Disaster Risk Management (DRM). DRM is a partnership with the Swiss Federal Institutes of Technology (ETH) and Virginia Tech, in conjunction with the World Bank Disaster Management Facility.

Within the past year the university has joined hands to form the Virginia Tech Wake Forest School of Biomedical Engineering. Rising out of the ground now at the Virginia Tech Corporate Research Center is the Via College of Osteopathic Medicine.

A registered architect and former dean of Tech's college of architecture and urban studies, Steger was the architect of a different sort as the leader of the university's successful fund raising campaign. Under his leadership as vice president for development and university relations, the Campaign for Virginia Tech raised $337 million.

Steger's ties to Virginia Tech span four decades as a student, professor, dean, vice president, and now president. While on the faculty, he twice won teaching excellence awards. When he became dean of the college in 1981, he was the youngest architecture dean in the nation at 33 years of age.

Steger received his bachelor and master of architecture and a Ph.D., in environmental science and engineering from Virginia Tech.
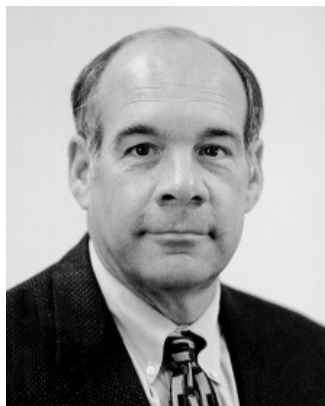

Jim Weaver ▸ Director of Athletics

James C. Weaver, whose innovative ideas and work as a reformer have made him one of college athletics' most popular administrators, is the director of athletics at Virginia Tech.

Weaver, 57, was appointed on September 24, 1997, and has been a tireless leader on behalf of Tech athletics. In his five years on the job at Tech, Weaver has taken steps to place increased emphasis on projects benefiting student-athletes. He created a comprehensive awards program for letterwinners and has initiated and funded an annual awards banquet.

Among Weaver's biggest accomplishments thus far has been getting Tech admitted into an all-sports conference. Tech entered competition in the BIG EAST Conference for most sports during the 2000-2001 season.

A top personal priority for Weaver is the continuing improvement of Tech's facilities, where major plans for the expansion of Lane Stadium/Worsham Field are underway. When it comes to athletic facilities, Weaver has a simple philosophy. "As soon as you sit still in terms of facilities, you have taken a step backward," he says.

Weaver came to Tech from Western Michigan University where he was director of athletics from January 1996 until he came to Blacksburg. Prior to that, he was AD for three and a half years at UNLV, where he reconstructed a troubled athletic department.

A native of Harrisburg, Pa., Weaver was a center and linebacker on Penn State football teams coached by the legendary Rip Engle and Joe Paterno.

Weaver graduated from Penn State in 1967 with a bachelor's in psychology and rehabilitation education. He received a master's in college counselor education, also from Penn State, in 1968.

Weaver started a coaching career as an assistant at Penn State for six seasons. He later was the offensive coordinator at Iowa State and head coach for one season at Villanova in 1974. He also spent five years as an assistant professor at Clarion State and three years as director of franchise sales at Athletic Attic.

Prior to landing the athletic director's job at UNLV, Weaver spent nine years at the University of Florida, which was sanctioned by the NCAA in 1983. He was a strong force at Florida in the field of compliance and concluded his time there as associate athletic director.

Weaver and his wife Traci have four sons — Josh, Paul, Cole and Craig.

The success of Virginia Tech's baseball program rests largely on the academic progress of each student-athlete. The academic performance of Tech student-athletes has improved each year due in part to the Student-Athlete Academic Support Services (SAASS). The ultimate goal is for all student-athletes to successfully complete their degree.

This past fall, the Tech baseball team enjoyed an outstanding semester in the classroom with an overall team QCA of 2.74. Eleven members of the squad posted a QCA of 3.0 or better with seven making the dean's list (3.4 and above).

SAASS provides programming for all student-athletes from their freshman year through graduation. This includes a comprehensive orientation to Tech, study hall, mentoring, tutoring, academic monitoring, academic recognition and eligibility education. Additionally, student-athletes are referred to and encouraged to take advantage of other campus agencies charged with helping students in their academic pursuits.

Academic facilities for student-athletes include the Monogram Room, a large room used as a study hall adjacent to the SAASS office in Cassell Coliseum. The HEAT Lab (Hokies Engaging in Advanced Technology) houses over 26 computers on the second floor of Cassell Coliseum and laptop computers are also available for Tech athletes to use when traveling to away contests.

The athletic department also provides areas for private, quiet study for the athletes' convenience. Additionally, student-athletes can use the Center for Academic Enrichment and Excellence site offices, located in Hillcrest and Femoyer Halls.

With the help of these resources, the Virginia Tech graduation rate for student-athletes has risen significantly in recent years and reached 71 percent in 2002 as compared to the national average of 58 percent.

Chris Helms, in his fourth year at Tech, is responsible for the development and leadership of the SAASS office. Helms oversees an office comprised of associate directors Lois Berg and Colin Howlett, assistant directors Katie Ammons, Renia

Edwards and Drew Scales, and secretary Terrie Repass.

Berg, who is in her 14th year at Tech, oversees the academic progress of the baseball team. She also is in charge of developing the freshman orientation program, which ensures the student-athlete a smooth transition from high school to the university.

BRAD BAUDER (CENTER) AND CHRIS WINTERFELDT VISIT THE HEAT LAB WITH LOIS BERG, WHO IS ASSOCIATE COORDINATOR OF STUDENT ACADEMIC SERVICES.

There's much more to athletic performance than weight training. Always striving to stay on the cutting edge, Virginia Tech has added two more services for its student-athletes in the past couple of years. At Tech, nutrition and sports psychology are also part of the student-athlete's preparation – not just for athletic competition, but also for life after college. Virginia Tech tries to provide the best services, facilities and support staff for all of its student-athletes, to make them better athletes and better people.

STRENGTH & CONDITIONING

Thanks to the direction of Assistant Athletics Director for Athletic Performance Mike Gentry, the Virginia Tech strength and conditioning program is among the best in the nation.

Gentry is in his 15th year as the Hokies' director of strength and conditioning. His duties include overseeing the strength and conditioning training of athletes in all 21 varsity sports at Virginia Tech. A native of Durham, N.C., Gentry received a bachelor's degree in physical education from Western Carolina University in 1979 and a master's from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1981. He received his doctorate in curriculum and instruction, with an emphasis in motor behavior, from Virginia Tech in 1999. In 1995 and 1996, Gentry was recognized by the National Strength and Conditioning Association as a finalist for the National Strength and Conditioning Professional of the Year.

The baseball team trains in the Jim "Bulldog" Haren Weight Room. Located in Jamerson Athletic Center, the Haren Weight Room is a 5,000-square foot weight room officially dedicated in September 1985 to Haren, a former Hokie player and long-time supporter of the Virginia Tech Athletics Department.

Assisting Gentry in the weight room this year are three full-time assistant strength and conditioning coaches: Jay Johnson, assistant director of strength and conditioning, Terry Mitchell, strength and conditioning coordinator of men's Olympic sports, and Emily Chones, strength and conditioning coordinator for women's Olympic sports. Gentry also has the services of five graduate assistants — Erin O'Neil, Lisa Guarneri, Keith Short, Gabe Teeple and Ken Oxendine.

SPORTS NUTRITION

A new program was added to the athletics department in July 2000 — sports nutrition.

In July 2002, Amy Freel, former coordinator of student life, became the full-time sports nutritionist in the Athletics Department.

Freel works one-on-one with student-athletes to provide them with information that they need on their diets. She also provides individual players with diet counseling on issues such as gaining lean muscle mass, losing body fat, and how to eat to improve performance.

"It is extremely beneficial for our student-athletes to have nutrition education and counseling available to them in order for them to remain successful in their sports and outside of athletics," Freel said. "The individualized nutrition educations allow me and the athletes to get very specific on their nutritional, personal and sport-specific goals."

SPORTS PSYCHOLOGY

Another new addition to the athletics department as of August 2000 is sports psychology. The licensed psychologists, Dr. Gary Bennett and Dr. Robert Miller, associate director of the Thomas E. Cook Counseling Center, counsel student-athletes either individually or as a team.

The psychologists meet with student-athletes on an individual basis for personal counseling, performance enhancement and to discuss the mental aspects of the game. As a team, the sports psychologists work on team building, communication and performance enhancement.

The psychologists also offer an injury group to afford injured athletes the opportunity to meet with other injured athletes and talk about their recovery process.

"These are great resources for our coaches and our athletes," Gentry says. "We've improved a lot in areas of strength and conditioning, nutrition and in sports psychology. It's all about becoming a well-rounded athletic program and helping student-athletes. We want to give them all the resources we can to put them in a position to be successful."

sports medicine

The Virginia Tech Sports Medicine Department is an ever-changing and developing unit that strives to provide the most current and comprehensive care to all student-athletes.

The department, under the leadership of Gunnar Brolinson, D.O., Delmas Bolin, M.D., and Mike Goforth, director of athletic training, is constantly evolving to incorporate new ideas and state-of-the-art resources for the betterment of student-athletes. A professional staff — including primary care physicians who are Board certified in family medicine and sports medicine, orthopaedic surgeons, certified athletic trainers, physical therapists, chiropractors, massage therapists, sports psychologists, nutritionists and orthotists — is available to manage the health care of athletes.

THE EDDIE FERRELL
MEMORIAL
TRAINING ROOM

As part of the evolution, Tech recently completed the Eddie Ferrell Memorial Training Room. This 4,300-square-foot area consolidated the training rooms that existed in the Merryman Center and Cassell Coliseum. The new facility gives the training staff a centralized area to care for the needs of all Virginia Tech student-athletes.

The new room, which nearly doubles the size of the former Merryman Center facility, also allows the staff to utilize that room for physical therapy, chiropractic care and massage therapy. Virginia Tech now has more than 10,000 square feet dedicated to sports medicine, placing Tech in the top five percent nationally.

The range of benefits athletes have access to include custom orthotics, custom mouth guards, specialized prophylactic bracing and many other options to help prevent or protect them from injuries. The sports medicine staff also takes great pride in treating the athlete year-round.

Dr. Brolinson, along with Goforth, team orthopaedic surgeon Dr. Marc Siegel and athletic trainer Jimmy Lawrence, care for the needs of Tech's baseball players. Lawrence attends practices and travels with the team.

The Office of Student Life at Virginia Tech helps in providing assistance to student-athletes in a number of areas. This office is dedicated to enhancing the quality of the student-athlete experience through the many programs that it implements.

One program that the office sponsors is the HiTOPS CHAMPS/Life Skills Program (Hokies Turning Opportunities Into Personal Success), which provides a well-rounded program for student-athletes to develop the individual skills necessary to lead successful and productive lives. The goal of this program is to enhance five areas of commitment that are vital to personal growth of student-athletes. Those areas are service, academic excellence, career development, athletic excellence and personal development. This program attempts to build individual confidence, promote respect for diversity, enhance interpersonal relationships, develop leadership skills, and enable each person to make a valuable contribution to the community.

Graduate assistants Kevin Walker and Amy Turley are assisting in the coordination and completion of the office responsibilities.

HOKIES WITH HEART

Another program developed by the Office of Student Life, Hokies With Heart, promotes the involvement of student-athletes in community service activities. In the past year, Virginia Tech athletes participated in nearly 50 community service projects.

This program has a major local impact because the different service projects help to build a positive relationship between student-athletes and the surrounding community.

VT-SAAC

The Virginia Tech Student Athlete Advisory Committee (VT-SAAC) promotes effective communication between the athletics administration and student-athletes to better serve their needs. The program is completely run by student-athletes and each team has two representatives. The representatives then report back to the team on any issues that the team should be aware of or discuss.

This program also encourages involvement of student-athletes on campus and in the community. The student-athletes help to design and provide programs that encourage academic success, health promotion, social responsibility and general awareness. SAAC also attempts to enhance the overall image of student-athletes to those outside of the Virginia Tech athletic family by serving as positive role models.

OUTSTANDING STUDENT-ATHLETES

Each month, the Office of Student Life awards recognition to a student-athlete for participation in community service projects and dedication to the Hokies With Heart program.

The student-athletes of the month are chosen based on their willingness to be involved with the community.

A Beautiful Setting for One of the Nation's Top Universities

Throughout the years, the town of Blacksburg and Virginia Tech have worked hand in hand to create a better community. Established as a farming community in 1798 by John and William Black, the town has thrived to rank among the nation's elite living environments.

In addition to being home to the Tech campus, Blacksburg was ranked among the top 20 retirement locations in the United States by Rand McNally. Local businesses and industries are drawn to the potential this quaint town has to offer. Blacksburg is gradually becoming more developed, making room for more businesses to flourish, however, the level of development is carefully controlled.

With a population of around 36,000 people and a major university, there is particular attention paid to the unique balance that preserves the atmosphere of a small town.

Blacksburg is located on a plateau between the Blue Ridge Mountains and the Alleghany Mountains, 2,100 feet above sea level. It is easily accessible in Southwestern Virginia on U.S. 460 near Interstate 81, only 40 miles southwest of Roanoke. Residents enjoy the beauty of the area and the close proximity to a variety of recreation areas such as the Blue Ridge Parkway, Claytor Lake and the New River.

More information on Blacksburg can be found on the Web site of the Blacksburg Electronic Village, www.bev.net or the town's Web site, www.blacksburg.va.us

Whether it is downtown Blacksburg or the nearby Cascades, the area around Virginia Tech is charming and pleasant.

Each summer, Blacksburg hosts the Steppin' Out festival, which features music, food and fun for everyone.
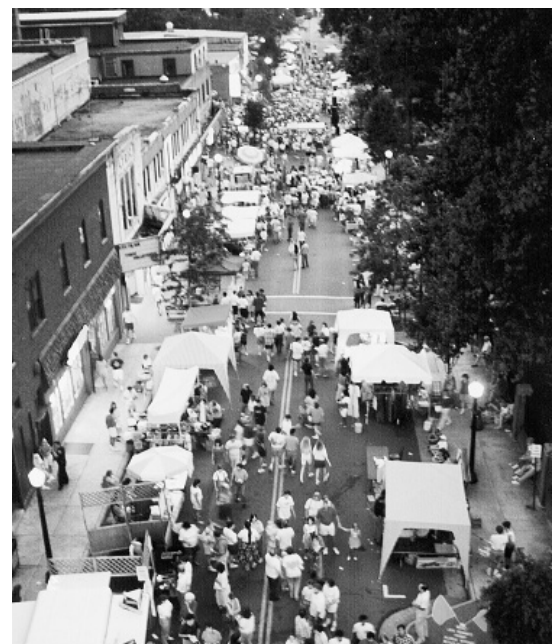

Scenic English Field provides Virginia Tech with a first-class campus setting for college baseball. The field, which was officially dedicated during a special ceremony on April 8, 1989, is named for the late E.R. 'Red' English and his wife, Ruth, who provided financial support for construction of the field.

Located at the intersection of Rt. 314 and Duckpond Drive, English Field features 778 permanent chair-back seats in its concrete stands. The seats were made possible through a contribution to the Virginia Tech Athletic Fund by an anonymous donor. The stands also include easy-access handicapped sections, which are located at the top of the stands on each side of the center section.

A permanent press box was completed in January 1997. The two-story building located at the top of the stands behind home plate provides a convenient working area for media, as well as two broadcast booths. It also houses a concession stand and restrooms.

One of the most popular features of English Field is "The Hill", a grass-covered bank along the left field line where baseball fans can continue the Tech tradition of sunbathing while watching the Hokies.

The field, which was constructed by the S. Lewis Lionberger Company, has dimensions of 330 feet down the lines, 375 feet in the power alleys and 400 feet to center field. The natural grass surface is composed of a mixture of rye and bluegrass. The field has a built-in slope for drainage and features a modern computerized irrigation system.

Other features include spacious dugouts faced with Hokie stone, bullpens that are located beside each dugout, a practice hitting facility along the right field line, a modern scoreboard and steel fencing covered with green plastic to prevent injury. Security fencing was added in January and future plans call for lighting and a parking lot. The landscaping also allows for further expansion of the stands as needed.

E.R. English, a native of Altavista, Va., played as an offensive and defensive guard on Virginia Tech football teams from 1930-34 and graduated from Virginia Tech in 1934. English contributed to Tech athletics for over 50 years and was one of the founders in 1949 of The Student Aid Association. He served as president of that organization two of its first three years.

English received the most outstanding alumni award at Tech in 1984.

Through a generous gift from alumnus George Sampson, the home team dugout was named for long-time Tech baseball coach G.F. 'Red' Laird during a ceremony on April 12, 1991. Laird recruited and coached Sampson at Tech.

The Hokies opened play at their new home with a 7-2 victory against George Mason University on March 22, 1989, and went on to post a 17-7 record during their first season in the facility. Tech compiled a 18-12 home record last season, bringing its 14-year mark at English Field to 238 wins, 93 losses and three ties.

Prior to the opening of English Field, Tech played its home baseball games at Tech Park, where it compiled a 431-122-1 record over 34 seasons.

Virginia Tech baseball offers outstanding facilities in a beautiful setting. The Hokies play at scenic English Field and use Rector Field House for indoor hitting and practices.
