2005 Season in Review

Tech Wins 11 Games, Earns 13th Straight Bowl Bid

It may not have been the Hollywood ending that head coach Frank Beamer was looking for, but the 2005 season was a banner year for his Virginia Tech Hokies.

For the 13th straight season, the Hokies were involved in a post-Christmas bowl game. Virginia Tech also clinched an 11-win season — for just the third time in school history — when it took on Louisville on Jan. 2 in the Toyota Gator Bowl.

After falling 27-22 to Florida State in the inaugural ACC Championship Game, the Hokies bounced back to end the season on a high note with a comeback win over Louisville in the Gator Bowl. The end of the season may not have been everything Tech fans wanted, but it won't overshadow what the team accomplished in 2005.

Just getting to the 11-win mark and the ACC title game were tall orders for the Hokies.

The team faced a number of questions as it entered the 2005 season. Perhaps the biggest question was about the quarterback position, where junior Marcus Vick was tabbed as the starter for the first time. He had high expectations to live up to — expectations established by 2004 ACC Player of the Year, Bryan Randall, as well as Vick's All-Pro older brother, Michael.

There were other questions facing the team heading into the season. The Hokies were breaking in nine new starters — including five on defense, where senior Jimmy Williams was the only incumbent in the secondary.

The team was also dealing with heightened expectations. Very few people had foreseen the Hokies' run to a conference title in 2004; however, nearly everybody was predicting a first-place finish this season.

Tech's journey to the 2006 Gator Bowl began in Raleigh, N.C., where a primetime ESPN audience got its first glimpse of the ACC Coastal Division Champions-to-be on a Sunday night against NC State. Vick answered a lot of questions early, leading the Hokies back from a first-quarter deficit and throwing a touchdown pass to junior David Clowney in the third quarter. However, the game wasn't sealed until junior Aaron Rouse intercepted a pass at the Tech 6-yard line to preserve the 21-16 win. Tech exacted revenge on NC State, one of three teams to beat the Hokies in 2004.

After allowing 13 points in the first half against the Wolfpack, Tech's defense tightened up. The Hokies allowed just three points over the next two quarters.

The Hokies' first shutout of the season came in week two as Darryl Tapp, Vick and company blanked Duke 45-0. Tapp led a defensive charge that allowed just five first downs and a school-record-low 36 yards of total offense for the Blue Devils. Vick continued to impress, throwing three more touchdown passes in front of a Wallace Wade Stadium crowd that heavily favored the maroon and orange of the Hokies.

Tech returned to the friendly confines of Lane Stadium/Worsham Field the following week to a sold out crowd and dispatched Ohio University, 45-0. Senior tailback Cedric Humes scored a pair of touchdowns while the Tech defense limited the Bobcats to just 189 yards of total offense.

For the first time since the Hokies' national championship run of 1999, the ESPN GameDay crew of Chris Fowler, Lee Corso and Kirk Herbstreit visited Blacksburg to do their weekly pregame show live from the Alumni Mall. The gang was greeted by a boisterous crowd, which didn't leave disappointed as the 4th-ranked Hokies swamped No. 15 Georgia Tech, 51-7.

Senior Jeff King used the ABC televised game to make a national statement. The 6-foot-5 tight end caught a touchdown pass on Virginia Tech's first drive and then blocked a Yellow Jacket field goal attempt, which led to D.J. Parker's 78-yard touchdown return to give the Hokies a 14-0 lead as they rolled to the conference win.

On the strength of their third-straight lopsided win, the Hokies moved up to No. 3 in both the Associated Press and Coaches' polls. It was the program's highest ranking since it was ranked second in the country during the 2000 season.

The Hokies hit the road the next week, traveling to Morgantown, W. Va. Tech had been knocked from its undefeated perch by the Mountaineers on a similar trip in 2003. It would be a different story this time. In front of a hostile crowd, Vick threw for two touchdowns and ran for another as the Hokies knocked off the eventual Big East and Sugar Bowl champions, 34-17.

ESPN's College GameDay crew made two appearances on the Virginia Tech campus last fall.

Tailback Cedric Humes scores his third touchdown of the game in helping Tech to a 52-14 victory over in-state and ACC rival Virginia.

For its next game, Tech returned home and dominated the second half in a 41-14 triumph over Marshall. With tailbacks Mike Imoh and Cedric Humes both out with injuries, freshman Branden Ore turned the game into his personal showcase. The 5-foot-11 back gained 146 yards and ran for the go-ahead score in the second quarter to cap a career game.

After a week off, the Hokies ran their undefeated streak to seven in an ESPN Thursday night game at Maryland. Again, Tech overcame a sluggish start for a 28-9 victory. Vick threw three interceptions, but accounted for 344 total yards (133 rushing, 211 passing) to lead the Tech offense. On defense, the Hokies held their fourth opponent to less than 10 points.

The Hokies played in their second straight Thursday night primetime game the next week, defeating their second Top 25 opponent by over two touchdowns in downing No. 13 Boston College, 30-10. Tech's defense held the Eagles to just 183 yards and forced three turnovers in the victory. Sophomore Vince Hall returned the final turnover for a 13-yard touchdown, his second TD of the season.

The win set up Tech's biggest game of the regular season, a showdown with No. 5 Miami at Lane Stadium. The GameDay group returned to Blacksburg for this ESPN Saturday night clash, but it didn't turn out the way the Hokies had hoped. The Hurricanes' defense forced six turnovers en route to a 27-7 win over the Hokies to take control of the Coastal Division.

After a week off to regain their focus, the Hokies traveled to Charlottesville, Va., to battle in-state rival Virginia. With its national title hopes eliminated, Tech came up with its best performance of the season as the seventh-ranked Hokies battered the Wahoos, 52-14. Humes and Ore combined for 228 yards rushing and five scores as Tech gained 333 yards on the ground. The victory, coupled with Miami's upset loss to Georgia Tech, moved the Hokies back into conference championship contention. All they needed to do was take care of North Carolina in the final regular-season game.

And they did.

Behind the running of Humes and Ore and another dominating defensive effort, the Hokies earned a trip to the ACC Championship game with a 30-3 win over the Tar Heels. The two tailbacks again combined for over 200 yards on the ground, while the Hokie defense held UNC to just 36 yards rushing.

Tech met up with old nemesis Florida State in the Dr. Pepper ACC Championship game at Jacksonville's Alltel Stadium. Untimely penalties and an FSU punt return for a touchdown that sparked a 24-point third quarter, were too much for the Hokies to overcome in the fourth quarter as the Seminoles ran their winning streak over Tech to 12 games. Despite the loss, Tech rebounded to dispatch Louisville, 35-24, to finish the season on a high note.

Following the regular season, several Hokies continued to achieve individual accolades. For the second year in a row, Beamer was named the ACC Coach of the Year. Five Hokies were named to the All-ACC first team, including Vick, Tapp and Williams, as well as offensive linemen Will Montgomery and Jason Murphy. Williams was named a unanimous All-American, making all five national first teams. Tapp was also named a first-team All-American by the AFCA and won the Dudley Award, which is given to the state's top collegiate player.

2006 Gator Bowl

Virginia Tech 35, Louisville 24

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The Virginia Tech Hokies twice rallied from 11-point deficits and scored 22 unanswered points in the fourth quarter to knock off Louisville 35-24 in the Gator Bowl played at Alltel Stadium on Jan. 2 in Jacksonville, Fla.

The win snapped a two-game losing streak in bowl games for the Hokies and enabled Tech to finish the 2005 season with an 11-2 overall record. Tech recorded 11 wins for just the third time in the program's history.

The Hokies trailed 14-3 in the first half, and 17-10 at halftime, primarily because of 75 yards in penalties, all of the 15-yard variety. In the second half, they found themselves down 24-13 after Louisville quarterback Hunter Cantwell hit Gary Barnidge on a 29-yard touchdown pass with less than 14 minutes left in the game.

After that score, the Hokies got things going. Tech answered by marching 78 yards in just two plays. Tech got a big play from quarterback Marcus Vick, who hit receiver David Clowney for a 54-yard gain to the Louisville 24. On the next play, Cedric Humes rumbled in from 24 yards out, and the Hokies connected on the two-point conversion when Vick hit Josh Morgan. That made the score 24-21 with just over 13 minutes to go.

Tech's Chris Ellis then gave Tech's offense a golden opportunity when he drilled Cantwell on the ensuing possession and forced the Louisville signal-caller to fumble. James Anderson recovered for the Hokies, giving Tech the ball at its own 47. The Hokies capitalized when Vick found tight end Jeff King in the back of the end zone on a 5-yard touchdown pass that gave the Hokies a 28-24 lead with 6:09 left in the game.

Tech put the game away a minute later. Anderson, a redshirt senior from Chesapeake, Va., who enjoyed a huge game, intercepted a Cantwell pass and returned it for a touchdown that made the score 35-24. Louisville had two opportunities to cut into the lead, but lost the ball on downs on one occasion and Brandon Flowers intercepted a pass on the Cardinals' final possession of the game.

Humes, a redshirt senior from Virginia Beach, Va., took home the game's MVP honors for Tech after rushing for 113 yards and one touchdown in his final collegiate game. His effort enabled the Hokies to rush for 187 yards, pacing a balanced Tech attack.

Vick completed 11-of-21 for 203 yards and two scores.

Tech's defense slammed the door on the Cardinals in the second half, allowing just seven first downs and 119 yards. Cantwell threw three touchdowns, but also threw three interceptions.

There was no stopping James Anderson when he returned this interception 39 yards for a touchdown.

Cedric Humes accepts the Most Valuable Player award at the conclusion of the Gator Bowl.
