Virginia Tech

An excellent place to learn and grow as an athlete and a person!

Heading into its second year in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Virginia Tech is building for the future. In addition to the increasingly talented players and higher level of play, the program raised the bar this summer with construction of a new artificial surface practice field, a new natural grass practice field, and an expansion of Tech's beautiful soccer stadium to 2,028 seats.

VIRGINIA TECH SOCCER STADIUM

Completed in the fall of 2003, the Virginia Tech Soccer Stadium is located in the heart of the athletic complex on the school's beautiful campus in Blacksburg. The stadium is the home to the men's soccer team. It provides an excellent venue for men's soccer matches and should be filled to near-capacity this fall as the Hokies serve as the host for seven home matches, including four ACC matches.

The bluegrass playing surface measures approximately 75 by 120 yards. The field is equipped with an underground irrigation system that can be drained and ready for play in rapid time. The wireless scoreboard enables fans to have a full score update, while a permanent Hubble lighting system allows for night games.

One of the finest facilities in the conference for spectators, the stadium features approximately 2,028 bench-back seats, where each fan has an unobstructed view of the playing surface. Spacious area around the field allows for nearly 1,500 more fans to watch games. On Friday, Nov. 21, 2003, the Virginia Tech men's soccer team served as the host for a first-round game of the NCAA Soccer Tournament, where a record-breaking 2,263 Hokie faithful witnessed Tech defeat Clemson.

Across from the fans and between each team's bench area is the Sandy Thompson Press Box. Fully-heated, the press box contains a state-of-the-art sound system and ethernet capability. The Internet-ready facility allows Tech's official athletic Web site, hokiesports.com, to originate live audio broadcasts and live stats of the Hokies' matches from the press box. Above the grandstand is a wired camera deck, which is accessible to all media.

While the stadium is open for full use at this time, additional construction of a restroom facility will be completed by October. After the increase of additional seating from last year along with the additional changes, it will make the Virginia Tech Soccer Stadium one of the best venues to watch the sport.

Hokies Have Their Sights Set High For Second Season in the ACC

After a successful spring season, the Virginia Tech men's soccer program is taking aim at conference glory and national recognition in only its second season in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Standing in the Hokies' way, however, will be nine teams that went to the NCAA Tournament last season.

Eight promising newcomers will join the squad as Tech hopes to return to the NCAA Tournament after narrowly missing the field in 2004. After knocking off some of the toughest teams in the country last year, head coach Oliver Weiss' team knows that it will have to be much more consistent in 2005 to compete among the best teams in the ACC and in the country.

"We all are looking forward to this season," Weiss said. "We have put a lot of work into our spring practices and games as well as recruiting to get ready for the fall. Our returning players should be poised to improve on last year's records. They are a little wiser and have been around the ACC for one solid year now. We have a chance to be more mature and clever this year. Although we will have many veterans on the squad, we may still see some brand new faces who can have a positive impact for us on the field. We definitely know we can beat any team on our schedule, but because it's a tough schedule, our opponents will be ready to challenge us as well. All in all, it should be a great fall campaign with 10 terrific matches at home in our upgraded soccer stadium."

FORWARD

Junior Ben Nason is head coach Oliver Weiss' most experienced returner in the attack. After having a standout freshman season and garnering second-team All-ACC honors last year, Nason will be a focal point for the offense. Scott Spangler will return following a redshirt season in 2004 to help take the pressure off Nason.

"Scott is a big piece of the puzzle," Weiss said. "He has the ability to score when it counts — in important matches. We are excited he returns to the field for us. Ben can be dangerous at any moment during the game and our offense needs that spark to win those close matches this fall."

With sophomore Brandon Miller and the influx of two international student-athletes, the offense could be one of the most potent in the NCAA.

"Patrick Nyarko is a true forward. He can play three or four different ways as a target," according to Weiss. Nyarko, along with Joshua Boateng, come to Blacksburg from Ghana. Boateng, a freshman from Accra, Ghana, should provide good finishing skills in both attack and in the midfield.

"Scoring goals will be the key for us. If we can get a few in each game, we'll be in great shape for the entire season. It won't be easy in the ACC, but I think the players will work very hard to make it happen," Weiss said.

MIDFIELD

The midfield is essentially intact from 2004. With senior co-captain Charlie Howe, Greg Roach, Brent Dillie, Chad Steuck and possibly the versatile Nason in the fold, the midfield has logged the most minutes for Tech. In addition to those five veterans, signees Bryan Matthews and Kevin McFadden, Jr., will also look to give more depth to a group that is competitive and experienced.

Boateng will also see playing time in the midfield as will fellow newcomers Shota Ban and Brad Collins.

"The new guys are great," Weiss said. "It certainly will become very competitive in midfield this year."

Magnus Einarsson, Bo Lawrence and Eric Vickers will also see playing time in the midfield. Einarsson will come back from playing summer ball in Iceland. Lawrence is returning from an injury and Vickers had a good spring season.

BEN NASON

"We are stronger than we have ever been in the midfield," Weiss said. "The midfield will essentially decide how we are going to play this year. We can hold on to the ball much better now and may be able to change the tempo and direction of the game more frequently."

DEFENSE

Although the midfield is the deepest position on the team, the defense is just as experienced. One of the top defenses in the NCAA last season, allowing just 23 goals in 20 matches, the unit has proven it can limit the amount of shots its opponents get.

In ACC play, the most goals that were allowed by the Tech defense were two. Between Duke and Maryland, teams that reached the final four of the NCAA Tournament, the Hokies allowed a combined two goals, defeating the Blue Devils and falling to Maryland in overtime.

"The defense will be the backbone of our success this year again," Weiss said.

All-Freshman ACC player Ian Taylor returns after starting all 20 games during his rookie campaign. Senior Dustin Dyer and Steuck will also be available for the defensive unit. Redshirt freshman Bryan Collier, who also impressed in the spring, seems to be a likely candidate for a back position after being hurt after playing in just three games, starting two, in 2004.

Sophomore Marcus Reed transitioned from midfield to defense during the spring and did well. He started 15 of 20 matches as a freshman and tallied 5 goals and an assist during his rookie campaign.

Freshmen Alexander Baden and Scott Dillie will also be in the mix for playing time. Both are 6-2 and could prove valuable when trying to win headers in the box.

GOALKEEPING

In net, Tech appears to be extremely strong, as senior Chase Harrison returns as one of the Hokies' most prolific goalkeepers in school history. Harrison posted eight shutouts and a 1.13 goals against average last year after playing every minute in net. He is already the career leader for shutouts (16) and minutes played (5,269) in a Tech uniform.

"Goalkeeper Chase Harrison needs to have another stellar season to give us a chance for our second postseason appearance," Weiss said. "He is a very good goalkeeper who has become better with each year in our program. As a co-captain, he can take this team as far as he wants."

Sophomore Drew Czekanski will vie for playing time as he prepares for his first collegiate action.

SCHEDULE, FACILITIES and EXPECTATIONS

Tech went 2-5 in the ACC in 2004, but knocked off the top two teams, No. 1 Duke and No. 2 Virginia. This season, the Hokies will not only face the same ACC schools as last year, but will have a familiar foe in Boston College as it enters the league. The last time the two met was in 2003, with Tech pulling out a 2-1 overtime decision in Chestnut Hill, Mass.

This year, the league and the rest of the schedule will be just as difficult as in 2004 in terms of quality. In addition to the league slate, the Hokies will tangle with Tulsa and Penn State at the third annual Virginia Tech Classic.

"We want to challenge our players and see how they react against tough competition," Weiss said.

"This season, we are deeper and have more choices off the bench, where we had no comfort zone before," Weiss said.

"The difference between the top team and the bottom team in the conference is minimal. On any given day, the ninth-placed team can defeat No. 1 in league play," Weiss said. "That makes the ACC so interesting to follow."

"No other league has so much balance," Weiss said. "The competition only increases a notch with Boston College joining. Every team is a potential NCAA Tournament team each year."

The Hokies face four ACC schools at home. Boston College comes to town first, followed by Duke, NC State and Maryland. In addition to the Golden Hurricane and Nittany Lions that come to town for the Classic, Davidson, Liberty, the University of Charleston and neighboring Radford will all visit the enlarged Virginia Tech Soccer Stadium.

Upgrades to the schedule and roster were not the only changes between Tech's first and second season in the ACC.

The summer of 2005 featured improvements for game and training facilities. The seating capacity at the Virginia Tech Soccer Stadium increased in size from 1,000 to 2,028 comfortable bench-back seats. Both practice fields have been redone. One field has an artificial grass-like surface, while new grass has been planted on the other field. Furthermore, and probably the biggest sigh of relief for fans is the construction of a bathroom facility at the North end of the spectator stands.

As shown by the increased emphasis on soccer facilities at Virginia Tech, Hokie Soccer has a chance to climb the ladder in a conference that dominates the landscape of men's soccer. Look for an improved and upgraded Tech squad that will leave its mark in the ACC this year.

"Only time will tell how good we can become, but we are looking for a total team effort this fall in every game and throughout the year," Weiss stated. "All indications point toward a steady improvement in all areas."

In 2005, the schedule is tougher and some of the teams have changed, but in order to be the best, one has to play the best. Weiss and his staff look to be the best in 2005.

OLIVER WEISS

MEN'S SOCCER COACH

In only three years as the head coach of the Virginia Tech soccer program, Oliver Weiss has accomplished a great deal, and in his fourth season, he looks to take the program to new heights. He has led the Hokies to a school-record-tying 14 wins and to the NCAA Tournament second round in 2003 and defeated No. 1 Duke and No. 2 Virginia in 2004 during Tech's inaugural Atlantic Coast Conference season.

His .592 winning percentage with the Hokies is the best in school history. Through all of these accomplishments, Weiss has proven himself as one of the most productive young coaches in collegiate soccer. Last season, Weiss' team held opponents at bay, limiting their shots, which produced the lowest amount of saves for any team in school history. Utilizing Weiss' attacking style, Tech set records for goals, points, shots and corner kicks while ranking among the nation's most prolific offensive teams in 2003. In his first year, in 2002, Weiss guided the Hokies to a 10-7-1 record, tying for seventh place in the conference with a 5-5-0 mark in BIG EAST play.

Before coming to Tech, Weiss served as the top assistant at the University of North Carolina from 1999 to 2001. During his three years in Chapel Hill, the team went 54-14-1 and earned a trip to the NCAA Tournament each season. In 2000, UNC captured the ACC championship and was seeded No. 1 in postseason play. In 2001, the Tar Heels won the national championship.

Weiss also served as an assistant at the College of William & Mary from 1996 to 1999, where he helped the Tribe to a 49-19-3 record and three trips to the national tournament. Before going to William & Mary, Weiss spent a year as an assistant at the University of New Hampshire.

Weiss began his coaching with a Richmond Under-10 team in 1988. A youth coaching career of eight years followed, producing eight consecutive Virginia State Cup championships, along with a Region 1 championship and a trip to the 1995 Snickers USYSA National Championships.

Weiss was selected as the 1990 and 1995 Virginia Youth Soccer Association Coach of the Year. In 1995, he was honored as the NSCAA East Region and the USYSA Region 1 Coach of the Year.

As a standout player at the University of Richmond, Weiss captained the team three out of his four years. He also earned All-Colonial Conference honors twice and South Atlantic honors once during his career with the Spiders. Weiss received a B.A. in history from the university in 1988.

Weiss graduated from Central High School in High Point, N.C., in 1984. He was named North Carolina High School Player of the Year and earned All-America honors.

Weiss holds a USSF 'A' coaching license and a German Soccer Federation 'B' license. He is also the director of the Hokie Soccer Academy for Boys and the Junior Hokies Day Camp.

A native of Burgdorf (a suburb of Hannover), Germany, Weiss became a United States citizen in 2000. He and his wife, Peggy, have a daughter, Samantha, and a son, Max.

MICHAEL BRIZENDINE

Assistant Men's Soccer Coach

Michael Brizendine begins his second year with the men's soccer program. An experienced coach on all levels, Brizendine will work with all aspects of the Hokie program.

Brizendine joined the Hokie staff after a successful stint at Bridgewater College, a Division III program in the Old Dominion Athletic Conference. He was also an assistant men's coach at Ferrum College in 1999.

He was the head men's coach at Bridgewater from 2001 to 2003 and assisted with the men's and women's teams in 2000. Guiding the team from non-competitive status to a full-fledged Division III program, Brizendine led Bridgewater to a 25-10 mark over two seasons - a .714 winning percentage, which earned him the Coach of the Year award his last season.

Brizendine is working toward his master's degree in health promotions from Virginia Tech.

He graduated from JMU in 1999 with a bachelor's degree in religion and a minor in business. He holds an Advanced National Coaching License from the NSCAA.

He earned all-conference and all-region recognition during his four-year career. He also played professionally with the Roanoke Wrath (1999) and the Northern Virginia Royals (2000 and 2001) of the Division 3 league.

He will also coach the New River Rapids under-11 team during the upcoming season.

LASSE MERTINS

Volunteer Assistant Coach

Lasse Mertins, a former standout collegiate player with the Hokies, joins the Virginia Tech staff as a volunteer coach in 2005.

A native of Rotenburg, Germany, Mertins played two seasons with the Hokies under head coach Oliver Weiss (2002-03). He led Virginia Tech to a 24-12-1 record over his two years, tallying seven goals and two assists from his defensive position.

Mertins was a co-captain his senior year and was the program's first Academic All-America honoree, garnering a spot on the third team. He was a two-time all-region selection in addition to earning a second-team All-BIG EAST nod in 2003.

Since completing his eligibility with Tech, Mertins has worked with Campbell Soup in Germany for the last year and a half.

He will work primarily with the goalkeepers as he works toward his Ph.D. in accounting and information systems.

By the way, what is a Hokie?

That's the most often-asked question in Virginia Tech athletics. The answer leads all the way back to 1896 when Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College changed its name to Virginia Polytechnic Institute. With the change came the necessity for writing a new cheer and a contest for such a purpose was held by the student body. Senior O.M. Stull won first prize for his "Hokie" yell which still is used today. Later, when asked if "Hokie" had any special meaning, Stull explained the word was solely the product of his imagination and was used only as an attention-getter for his yell. It soon became a nickname for all Tech teams and for those people loyal to Tech athletics. The official school colors — Chicago maroon and burnt orange — also were introduced in 1896. They were chosen because they made a "unique combination" not worn elsewhere at the time.

Hokie fans are among the most loyal and spirited in all of collegiate athletics.

BLACKSBURG, VIRGINIA

College Town, U.S.A.

One of America's best college towns, Blacksburg is a perfect setting for a great university like Virginia Tech.

Located in Southwest Virginia on a plateau between the Blue Ridge and Alleghany Mountains, Blacksburg combines the laid-back lifestyle of a small town with the amenities one would expect to find around a major center of higher education. Together, the town and university have worked hard to create a progressive community that ranks among the nation's elite living environments.

Virginia Tech and the Town of Blacksburg gained national and international attention by creating the world's first "electronic village." Businesses and industries have been drawn by the potential of the quaint town.

Established in 1798 by John and William Black, the town is surrounded by scenic mountain views that accentuate the area. Since its founding, Blacksburg has grown to become the largest town in Virginia.

The nearly 42,000 residents (including students) enjoy a close proximity to a variety of recreation areas such as the Blue Ridge Parkway, Appalachian Trail, Claytor Lake and the New River. The region features a moderate climate and four distinct seasons.

Blacksburg's location (adjacent to major interstate highways) provides convenient access to most points in the southern and eastern parts of the country.

A Research University in Action

From a meager beginning in October of 1872, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, popularly known as Virginia Tech, has evolved into a comprehensive university of national and international prominence. As Virginia's largest university with 25,600 students and one of the top research institutions in the nation, it is an institution that firmly embraces a history of putting knowledge to work. That tradition is rooted in our motto, Ut Prosim: "That I May Serve," and our land-grant missions of instruction, research, and solving the problems of society through public service and outreach activities.

Instruction

Virginia Tech's eight colleges (Agriculture & Life Sciences, Architecture & Urban Studies, Pamplin College of Business, Engineering, Liberal Arts & Human Sciences, Natural Resources, Science, and Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine, plus the Graduate School) offer more degree programs than any other university in the state with 60 undergraduate and 110 graduate programs. Virginia Tech is one of the nation's leaders in developing and using new instructional technologies.

Research

With annual research expenditures of about $269 million, Virginia Tech consistently ranks among the top research universities in the United States. With more than 100 research centers, the university also consistently ranks among the top institutions in industry-supported research and near the top 10 in the number of patents issued each year.

The university's faculty and students are involved in more than 3,700 research projects in fields ranging from biotechnology to materials, from the environment and energy to food and health, and from transportation to computing information.

Outreach and International Affairs

As part of its outreach mission, Virginia Tech is involved in a multitude of economic and community development projects. For example, it helps global marketing efforts, investigates better uses for strip-mined land, helps clean the Chesapeake Bay and other state waterways, directs reforestation in Senegal--and the list goes on.

Outreach efforts focus on education and the dissemination of knowledge in the global society in which we live.

Professionals, organizations, and communities tap Virginia Tech's vast resources, expertise, and research results through hundreds of continuing education programs, part of Outreach Program Development. Virginia Tech has a long history of providing innovative distance learning techniques, such as satellite videoconferencing, multimedia, interactive video, interactive computer conferencing, and web-based courses, to meet the various needs of working adults and other nontraditional students.

The Inn at Virginia Tech and Skelton Conference Center on campus have been completed, and The Hotel Roanoke and Conference Center in Roanoke, also owned by Virginia Tech, support the university's outreach education mission by working with faculty to plan and host conferences.

Virginia Tech manages more than $30 million in funded economic development projects in 27 countries and encourages faculty to develop global course content and study abroad opportunities for students. In 2002-2003, 2,089 students from 113 foreign countries are studying at Virginia Tech while more than 800 Virginia Tech students were studying abroad.

Virginia Cooperative Extension, operated jointly in the Commonwealth by Virginia Tech and Virginia State University, has been helping people improve their economic, cultural, and social well-being for more than 85 years now. With 107 city/county offices, and more than 44,000 volunteers and 160 programs Extension reaches and teaches millions of Virginians annually.

Move to the ACC Paid Huge Dividends in the Hokies' Inaugural Season

Virginia Tech has a long and proud tradition in athletics, but the Hokies have really seen their success and visibility grow immensely over the past few years. For the ever-growing legion of Tech fans, the most exciting part is that the future looks even brighter.

On July 1, 2004, Virginia Tech officially became a member of the prestigious Atlantic Coast Conference — a move that has already helped the Hokie athletics program grow even stronger.

Tech competes at the Division I level of the NCAA, and with a total of 21 varsity sports, 11 for men and 10 for women, Virginia Tech provides generous opportunities for athletes (and fans) to get in the Hokie huddle.

The recent success — and bright outlook — of Oliver Weiss' soccer program is only part of the story.

Tech's nationally-known football team has had unprecedented success over the past decade. The Hokies have played in 12 consecutive bowl games. Last year, the Hokies won 10 games and played in the Sugar Bowl after capturing the Atlantic Coast Conference Championship. The Tech football team won BIG EAST Championships in 1995, 1996 and 1999, and played for the National Championship in the 2000 Nokia Sugar Bowl.

The women's basketball team has averaged 22 wins over the past eight seasons and has made eight consecutive postseason appearances, including making the NCAAs last year.

Last year, Spyridon Jullien won NCAA titles in the indoor weight throw and in the hammer throw in leading the Hokies to a 13th-place finish in the outdoor track & field championships and a 16th-place finish in the indoor championships.

In 2001, the Hokie golf team won a nation's-best six tournaments, including the BIG EAST Golf Championship, and went on to record an eighth-place finish at the 2001 NCAA Golf Championship.

Baseball, women's soccer, swimming and diving, tennis and other Tech sports, also enjoy success at the conference and NCAA levels.

Bryan Randall celebrates Virginia Tech's first ACC football championship at a pep rally after the Hokies returned from defeating Miami 16-10 on Dec. 4, 2004.

Virginia Tech celebrates after advancing to the second round of the 2003 NCAA Tournament. The Hokies moved on after netting 6 penalty kicks to 5 for Clemson, after playing to a 3-3 tie through regulation and two overtimes.

Virginia Tech fans are among the most supportive and spirited in the nation, and their sports teams give them plenty to cheer about. From the success of the football team, to the golf team's regular appearances in the NCAA Championships, to the soccer team celebrating big wins over nationally-ranked opponents, the Hokies have a lot to be proud of.

Providing the Tools Needed for Success in the Classroom

The success of Virginia Tech's soccer program rests largely on the academic progress of each student-athlete. The academic performance of Tech student-athletes has improved each year due in part to the Student Athlete Academic Support Services (SAASS).

The Virginia Tech graduation rate for student-athletes has risen significantly in recent years and is a school best 74 percent for 2005. This marks the third time in the last four years that Virginia Tech's student athlete graduation rate has been 70 percent or better.

In addition to posting impressive graduation figures, Virginia Tech's student-athletes continue to excel in the classroom. For the 2004 calendar year, 425 3.0 GPA's were earned by student-athletes, student trainers, student managers, cheerleaders and HighTechs. These student athletes and students from support areas were recognized at the Athletic Director's Honors Breakfast last spring.

Student-athletes are the most visible student component of a university. They entertain thousands of fans, students and alumni. Their athletic ability and achievement is the primary focus for national media attention. Athletic events bring back not only faithful alumni, but are a welcome mat for potential new students.

Student-athletes devote many hours to practice, conditioning and training that are not required of all students. Due to their time commitment and their high visibility, it is an obligation and in the best interest of the university to supply these students with services which will allow them to maximize their academic potential.

The Virginia Tech Student Athlete Academic Support Services office is committed to providing fundamental and supplemental programming, consistent with University and NCAA policy, aimed at enhancing each student athlete's educational experience.

Drew Scales (right) advises the soccer team on academic issues.

Stakeholders of the office's mission include student athletes and their families, the university community, coaches and athletics administrators. SAASS seeks to develop relationships with its stakeholders that are founded on trust and respect, and provides the following services to accommodate their needs:

- University and NCAA information
- Orientation
- Academic assessment
- The development of an effective student life program
- Appropriate referrals
- Monitored study environments
- Tutorial programs
- State of the art technological learning assistance
- Student Athlete academic performance evaluations

Student-athletes are recognized at the annual Athletic Director's Honors Breakfast.

The expectations of the Virginia Tech community are that each student-athlete achieves their maximum academic and athletic potential. With the proper assistance, facilities and encouragement, these potentials can become a reality.

SAASS provides programming for student-athletes from their freshman year through graduation. This includes a comprehensive orientation to Tech, study hall, mentoring, tutoring, academic monitoring, academic recognition and eligibility education. Additionally, student-athletes are referred to and encouraged to take advantage of other campus agencies charged with helping students in their academic pursuits.

In the 2005-06 academic year the SAASS office will be moving to the West Side of Lane Stadium. Here, student athletes will have access to state-of-the-art technology, quiet study facilities, individualized tutorial rooms, and direct access to the SAASS staff. This complex will be a focal point for the Athletics Department, both aesthetically and pragmatically, and provide a centralized place for student athlete services.

The new facility features:

- More than 18,000 square feet of functional space
- 10 Staff Offices
- 18 Private Tutor Rooms
- State-Of-The-Art Classroom
- 45 Station Computer Lab
- Three Reading/Study Rooms
- Conference Room
- Reference Library

Together, these spaces provide the student-athlete with a variety of study environments conducive to their success. Athletes can use these facilities between classes, after practice or in the evenings, with flexible hours tailored to make the most of a student-athlete's limited time.

Beginning his seventh year at Virginia Tech, Chris Helms is the director and is responsible for the development and leadership of the Student Athlete Academic Support Services office. Helms oversees an office comprised of two associate directors, three assistant directors, a systems analyst, an intern, and a secretary forming a group of professionals serving the needs of all student-athletes.

In addition to his duties directing SAASS, Helms serves as a liaison between the academic and athletic communities and is an ad hoc member of the University Athletic Committee.

Ben Nason works in one of the computer labs.

Helms came to Tech from Michigan State University, where he served as the assistant director of the Student Athlete Support Services office.

Drew Scales begins his fourth year with Student Athlete Academic Support Services as an assistant director. Scales provides academic support for student-athletes in the soccer programs as well as lacrosse, volleyball, and wrestling. His administrative responsibilities include the development and oversight of SAASS's mentor program. Scales is a former student athlete with an undergraduate degree in Psychology from Morehouse College and Master's degrees from the Arizona School of Professional Psychology and Michigan State University. In addition to his extensive experience providing student athlete academic support, Drew has served as a consultant for sport psychology and performance enhancement training.

COMPUTER SERVICES DEPARTMENT

Brad Tilley and Brandon Mason provide excellent computer services to the department.

Another example of Virginia Tech's commitment to providing its student-athletes with the best academic resources possible is the presence of the Computer Services department, under the direction of Brad Tilley.

Because all Tech students are required to own computers, the Virginia Tech athletics department helps its scholarship athletes fulfill that requirement by providing them with computers.

In addition to ordering computers for the athletes, the office also addresses computer service needs for the student-athletes and the entire Virginia Tech athletics staff.

Brandon Mason is an assistant for computer and network support.

The Virginia Tech Athletics Office of Student Life is committed to developing the total student-athlete. Director Megan Armbruster is dedicated to enhancing the quality of the student-athlete experience through programs the office administers. The programming implemented by the Virginia Tech Athletics Office of Student Life is modeled after the NCAA/CHAMPS Life Skills Program. The five components are Personal Development, Career Development, Academic Excellence, Athletic Excellence and Community Outreach.

Megan Armbruster
Director of
Student Life

Personal Development

Virginia Tech student-athletes obtain personal development education through workshops and mandatory speakers. Presentation topics include gambling, alcohol abuse, sexual violence and healthy relationships, media relations, and manners and etiquette dinners.

The Virginia Tech soccer team invites numerous speakers to present a variety of topics during fall practices and meetings. Topics covered in these presentations include: appropriate campus and community conduct, media relations, sports psychology, drug and alcohol education, sports agent relations, gambling and healthy relationships.

Career Development

In close collaboration with the Virginia Tech Career Services Center, career development programs are designed specifically for student-athletes. Resume design, career fair etiquette, mock interviews, interview attire and mini-career fairs are just a few examples of workshops hosted by the Athletics Office of Student Life. Student-athletes are encouraged to participate in on-campus interviewing and eRecruiting along with securing internships and coops during their college careers. In 2005, both Cintas Corporation and NVR Inc., hosted workshops providing student-athletes the opportunity to hear job search strategies directly from employers.

Academic Excellence

The Virginia Tech Athletics Office of Student Life is responsible for nominating student-athletes for academic honors and awards. Athletes are nominated for on-campus, Atlantic Coast Conference and national awards. This year, Jessica Morris, a member of the cross country team, was named the Virginia Tech Undergraduate Woman of the Year. Student-athletes with a 3.0 GPA are rewarded each semester by being honored on the Athletic Director's Honor Roll. The 2004 calendar year listed 315 student-athletes with this honor. Bob Ritchie, men's basketball, and Mallory Soldner, women's soccer, received the Skelton Award for Academic Excellence in Athletics. The award is given to one male and one female student-athlete who demonstrate leadership, outstanding academic excellence and community involvement. The recipients of the award receive a $5,000 scholarship donated by Dr. Bill and Peggy Skelton.

student life,

Hokies.

Several athletes from the Virginia Tech men's soccer team have received various academic awards. Fourteen Hokies made the Athletic Director's Honor Roll in 2004. Dustin Dyer was named to the 2004 Virginia Tech All-Academic Team for attaining the highest GPA in 2004 on the men's soccer team. Chase Harrison, Marcus Reed, Dustin Dyer, Greg Roach and Peter Woody were named to the 2004 Fall Virginia Tech Dean's List. Members of the Spring 2005 Virginia Tech Dean's List included Chase Harrison, Dustin Dyer and Pete Woody.

Athletic Excellence

The Virginia Tech Student Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) promotes effective communication between athletic administration and student-athletes. SAAC is comprised of two representatives from each sport. These representatives meet twice a month to discuss issues and concerns regarding their sports, department of athletics, ACC and NCAA legislation. The student-athletes encourage their teammates to get involved both on campus and in the community. Each year SAAC sponsors a canned food drive during the basketball season. The football team representatives are Cary Wade and Cory Price.

Community Outreach

The Athletics Office of Student Life community outreach program is "Hokies with Heart". Student-athletes are encouraged to volunteer throughout their college experience. In collaboration with the Virginia Tech Corp of Cadets and student leadership, the "Hokies with Heart" program works together with the Montgomery County Public Schools System to visit with local school kids about the importance of education and character development. In 2004, the student-athletes also volunteered with the Montgomery County Christmas Store, Virginia Tech White Ribbon Campaign and Hokies United Tsunami Relief Campaign.

Each athletic team at Virginia Tech is encouraged to select one local charity on which to focus their philanthropic efforts throughout the year. Upon completion of the 460 Bypass, the men's soccer team looks forward to participation in the Adopt-a-Highway program. Members of the men's soccer team have been active participants in the Virginia Tech White Ribbon Campaign and volunteers with the Montgomery County Christmas Store.

Members of the soccer team help out with the White Ribbon Campaign as part of their community outreach.

CHARLES W. STEGER

University President

Now in his sixth year as President of Virginia Tech, Dr. Charles Steger has charted a course to bolster the university's research enterprise and compete among the nation's elite research institutions. Under his direction, the university has adopted a strategic plan, which is guiding the growth of the research enterprise, fostering outreach initiatives, and increasing quality across all aspects of the academic community.

Steger's ties to Virginia Tech span five different decades as a student, professor, dean, vice president and now president. While on the faculty, he twice won teaching excellence awards. When he became dean of the College of Architecture and Urban Studies in 1981, he was, at age 33, the youngest architecture dean in the nation.

President Steger will be forever credited with negotiating Tech's entrance into the Atlantic Coast Conference — a fifty-year dream come true for Hokie fans.

As Vice President for Development and University Relations, Steger built a critical base of private support when he led the Campaign for Virginia Tech, which raised more than $337 million. Today, private support from Virginia Tech's alumni and friends continues to play an essential role in this university community. Last year, the university raised $77 million, a 15 percent increase over the previous year.

Steger received his Bachelor of Architecture degree, Master of Architecture degree and Ph.D., in Environmental Science and Engineering from Virginia Tech.

JIM WEAVER

Director of Athletics

James C. Weaver, whose innovative ideas and work as a reformer have made him one of college athletics' most popular administrators, is the director of athletics at Virginia Tech.

Weaver, 60, was appointed on Sept. 24, 1997 and has been a tireless leader on behalf of Tech athletics. In his years on the job at Tech, Weaver has taken steps to place increased emphasis on projects benefiting student-athletes and fans.

A top personal priority for Weaver is the continuing improvement of Tech's facilities. When it comes to athletic facilities, Weaver has a simple philosophy. "As soon as you sit still in terms of facilities, you have taken a step backward," he says.

Major renovations on the west side of Lane Stadium are nearing completion. In addition to luxury suites and other game day amenities, the structure will house a ticket office, athletic fund offices, an Athletics Hall of fame and a new student academic services area.

Additional projects completed in the past year include renovations of Olympic sport locker rooms, a new golf team building at the River Course, filming capability at the tennis center, new practice fields (one natural and one artificial) at Moseley Field, and a driveway for buses at Cassell Coliseum.

Weaver presided over Tech's move into the Atlantic Coast Conference in 2004-05. Virginia Tech and Miami were officially introduced as the 10th and 11th members of the ACC, effective July 1, 2004.

Weaver came to Tech from Western Michigan University where he was director of athletics from January, 1996 until he came to Blacksburg. Prior to that, he was AD for three and a half years at UNLV, where he reconstructed a troubled athletic department.

Weaver brings a "Penn State mentality" to the position. He says that various schools' interest in him as a reformer through the years can be traced to Penn State and its reputation for how it conducts business in intercollegiate athletics.

It was with the Nittany Lions' football team that Weaver first made a name for himself in athletics. He was a center and linebacker on Penn State teams coached by the legendary Rip Engle and Joe Paterno.

A native of Harrisburg, Pa., Weaver was recruited to Penn State by Engle. He played three seasons under Engle and one under Paterno, who is still the coach of the Nittany Lions.

Weaver graduated from Penn State in 1967 with a bachelor's in psychology and rehabilitation education. He received a master's in college counselor education, also from Penn State, in 1968.

Weaver started a coaching career as an assistant at Penn State for six seasons.

He later was the offensive coordinator at Iowa State and head coach for one season at Villanova in 1974. He also spent five years as an assistant professor at Clarion State and three years as director of franchise sales at Athletic Attic.

Prior to landing the athletic director's job at UNLV, Weaver spent nine years at the University of Florida, which was sanctioned by the NCAA in 1983. He was a strong force at Florida in the field of compliance and concluded his time there as associate athletic director.

Weaver drew rave reviews at UNLV for his fund-raising expertise. He generated nearly $15 million in his time there.

While at Western Michigan, Weaver announced creation of a $7 million football center, stabilized fluctuating revenues and installed a CHAMPS Life Skills program.

Weaver and his wife Traci have four sons — Josh, Paul, Cole and Craig.

ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

There's much more to athletic performance than weight training. Always striving to stay on the cutting edge, Virginia Tech has combined strength and conditioning with nutrition and sport psychology to the benefit of its student-athletes. At Tech, these areas are part of the student-athletes' preparation — not just for game days, but also for life after college. Virginia Tech tries to provide the best services, facilities and support staff for all of its student-athletes, to help them become better athletes and better people.

Strength & Conditioning

One of the most important aspects of a successful college soccer program is its strength and conditioning program. Before the lights ever come on, before the players run onto the field for the first game and before the first goal is ever scored for a season, college soccer players work on getting themselves physically prepared for the rigors of a five-month season.

Thanks to the direction of Assistant Athletics Director for Athletic Performance Mike Gentry, the Virginia Tech strength and conditioning program is among the best in the nation, helping to make the soccer program one of the best as well.

Tech soccer players train in the Jim "Bulldog" Haren Weight Room. Located in Jamerson Athletic Center, the 5,000-square foot weight room was officially dedicated in September 1985 to Haren, a former Hokie player and long-time supporter of the Virginia Tech Athletics Department. With the two facilities, the Hokies have more than 22,000-square feet of strength and conditioning training space.

Assisting Gentry in the weight room this year are full-time assistant strength and conditioning coaches: Jay Johnson, director of strength and conditioning, Terry Mitchell, assistant director of strength and conditioning, and Jamie Meyer coordinator for strength and conditioning.

The Hokies work out in the spacious speed and agility room in Tech's Merryman Center.

The BOD POD

Sports Nutrition

Eating healthy and choosing nutritious diets are important aspect of a Virginia Tech student-athlete's life, and that's why in July 2002, the athletics department implemented the sports nutrition program. Amy Freel serves as the director.

Freel works individually with student-athletes to provide them with information they need on their diet. She also provides individual players with diet counseling on issues such as gaining lean muscle mass, losing body fat, and eating choices to improve performance.

She also designs preseason menus, snacks and training table menus for the soccer team.

"It is extremely beneficial for our student-athletes to have nutrition education and counseling available to them in order for them to remain successful in their sports and outside of athletics," Freel said. "The individualized nutrition education allows me and the athletes to get very specific on their nutritional, personal and sport-specific goals."

The sports nutritionist works with the "Training Edge," a dining option for health-conscious students and athletes, to design menus for training tables and daily menu selections.

Also in July 2002, the Virginia Tech Athletics Department purchased the BOD POD body composition system. Tech is one of a handful of college athletic departments using this type of technology. The BOD POD is found in many professional training facilities, such as the NFL and Major League Baseball. It accurately measures body composition (percent of body fat, lean muscle mass and fat mass) through air displacement within five minutes. Research has shown that an increase in lean muscle mass will increase athletic performance. The Sports Nutrition Program has helped countless Tech athletes maximize their athletic performance.

Sport Psychology

Virginia Tech also offers another important service to all its student-athletes – sport psychology. Dr. Gary Bennett coordinates the sport psychology department, which offers psychological and performance enhancement services for student-athletes. Bennett also works closely with the Cook Counseling Center.

Bennett meets with student-athletes on an individual basis for personal counseling and to discuss the mental aspects of the game. He also works on team building, communication and performance enhancement.

Mike Gentry, assistant AD for athletic performance, says, "I've always felt that (sport psychology) was an important element. We want to be a holistic model of an athletics department, and we wanted to and needed to include sport psychology in that model."

"We try to address all the various factors that affect student-athletes' performance on and off the field," Bennett says. "We believe we can help athletes perform better by addressing those concerns."

The sport psychology department also offer an injury group to afford injured athletes the opportunity to meet with other injured athletes and talk about their recovery process. Injured athletes may also meet individually with the sport psychologists if they do not feel comfortable in the group or cannot make the sessions. On average, the psychologists conduct 20 individual sessions per week and also meet weekly with teams as the need arises.

A new addition to the sport psychology resources is the Dynavision 2000, a unique conditioning and training program designed to increase focus and concentration, improve coordination and visuomotor reactions, and increase peripheral awareness. Virginia Tech is privileged to be one of only a handful of schools with this cutting-edge technology.

The response to the sport psychology program has been very positive. The student-athletes are very receptive to the services offered by the doctors. The sport psychology office reaches out to athletes who may not have considered going to the counseling service that is offered to all students at Virginia Tech.

"It is a great resource for our coaches and our athletes," Gentry says. "We've improved a lot in areas of strength and conditioning, nutrition and in sport psychology. It's all about becoming a well-rounded athletic program and helping student-athletes. We want to give them all the resources we can, to put them in a position to be successful."

Dr. Gary Bennett

SPORTS MEDICINE

The Virginia Tech Sports Medicine Department is an ever-changing and developing unit that strives to provide the most current and comprehensive care to all student-athletes. The department is constantly evolving to incorporate new ideas and state-of-the-art resources for the betterment of student-athletes.

A professional staff - including primary care physicians who are Board certified in family medicine and sports medicine, orthopaedic surgeons, certified athletic trainers, physical therapists, chiropractors, massage therapists, sport psychologists, nutritionists and orthotists - is available to manage the health care of Tech athletes.

As part of the evolution, Tech recently completed its fourth full year in the 4,300-square-foot Eddie Ferrell Memorial Training Room. This area consolidated the training rooms that existed in the Merryman Center and Cassell Coliseum. The facility gives the training staff a centralized area to care for the needs of all Virginia Tech student-athletes.

Virginia Tech now has more than 10,000 square feet dedicated to sports medicine, placing Tech in the top five percent nationally. In addition, the $10 million Merryman Center, a state-of-the-art facility that includes 2,400 square feet of medical space, will supplement the new training room. This treatment room has numerous treatment modalities, including portable X-ray, electric stimulation, ultrasound, hot and cold packs and a lumbar/cervical traction unit. It also has offices for the staff, dozens of training tables, two cold tubs, whirlpools, an underwater treadmill, a Biodex System 3 and various other pieces of rehabilitation equipment.

The range of benefits athletes have access to include custom orthotics, custom mouth guards, specialized DonJoy prophylactic bracing and many other options to help prevent or protect them from injuries. The sports medicine staff also takes great pride in treating the athlete year-round. Special attention is paid to off-season activity.

"If our strength and conditioning is so important, and it is, then we owe it to our athletes to provide them with the necessary resources to keep them actively participating," Goforth said. "We basically adopt the attitude that in the fall, our mission is to keep them participating on the field and during the other times of the year, it is our job to keep them participating in our strength and conditioning program."

Their programs consist of strengthening, stretching and most importantly movement pattern analysis and training to help prevent the re-occurrence of injuries.

"We value the off-season greatly within our department," Goforth said. "We have adopted the same mindset as our strength and conditioning staff and look at our off-season time as an opportunity to get our athletes better as opposed to time off for our staff."

A vital part of student-athletes services is the access to the Schiffert Student Health Center in McComas Hall. The center also has a fully operational diagnostic laboratory, X-ray facilities and eight full-time physicians.

If physical therapy is needed, student-athletes can be seen by therapist Mark Piechoski in the Ferrell Training Room. Piechoski, who is a certified athletic trainer, physical therapist, and strength and conditioning specialist plays a large role in the overall program developed to return the injured athlete back to 100 percent. In addition, staff sport psychologist Gary Bennett is available to all student-athletes for personal and performance issues. Virginia Tech also has the services of Dr. Greg Tilley, team chiropractor. Tilley provides Tech athletes with specialized treatment for spine-related conditions and also plays a huge role in performance enhancement through various chiropractic techniques.

"Our goal is to provide the same high level of health care that Olympic athletes receive," Goforth continued. "Our usage of specialist care is modeled after the NFL system and incorporates components of the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs."

Team orthopaedic surgeons Dr. Marc Siegel and Dr. Scott Urch bring a wealth of experience and skills to assist when athletes need orthopaedic surgery to repair certain types of sports-related injuries that occur from time to time.

Tech also maintains a special relationship with Montgomery Regional Hospital. Montgomery Regional Hospital is the choice for state-of-the-art equipment to perform surgeries, diagnostic imaging and processing of laboratory requests.

Jimmy Lawrence, a 27-year veteran in the athletic department, begins his third season as the men's soccer trainer, after taking over those duties mid-season two years ago. He has been the baseball athletic trainer for 26 years. He will be assisted by several graduate assistants and student trainers.

The Hokies' athletic training and medical facilities and staff are second to none.

Hokies Set Numerous School Records, Defeat Two Top-Ten Opponents in Inaugural ACC Season

The Virginia Tech men's soccer team wrapped up its roller-coaster season on Nov. 10 with a 1-0 overtime loss to Wake Forest in the ACC Tournament. The Hokies finished their first-ever in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 2-5 record in the league and a 9-10-1 record overall, with one of the more grueling schedules in the nation.

Tech faced nine schools that made the NCAA Championships, winning three times. The wins came against No. 23 Coastal Carolina, No. 1 Duke and No. 2 Virginia.

Against Coastal Carolina in the Clemson Nike Classic, freshman Kevin Edwards netted his second career goal, while sophomore Ben Nason added an insurance goal in the 2-0 victory. Traveling to Durham, N.C., to face Duke the following week, the Hokies continued their shutout streak, taking a 1-0 game over the No. 1 team in the nation in front of 2,434 fans. Senior Bailey Allman, who led the team with seven goals for the season, scored the only goal of the match off a pass from junior Magnus Einarsson for the win.

In the final home game, the Hokies faced No. 2 Virginia for the first time as conference foes. Tech went on the attack, striking at the 2:16 mark on Greg Roach's first goal of the season. Roach was assisted by Nason on the play.

UVa battled back and tied the game in the 25th minute. It would remain that way until senior co-captain Ken Jonmaire found a streaking

Nason eight minutes into the second half for the game-winner. Tech's defense stymied the high-scoring Cavaliers, and gave the Hokies their first win over UVa in 23 attempts. The two goals scored by the Hokies tied the most ever while competing against the Cavaliers. Tech had only scored two goals in a game one other time in the history of the series.

While proving that they could play at the level of the national elite in the wins over Duke and UVa, the Hokies also proved they could play down to the level of competition that they realistically should have beaten.

"We beat two top-five teams," head coach Oliver Weiss said. "We had several good results, but the inconsistencies came back to haunt us."

The 379-plus consecutive minutes that Tech held its opponents scoreless — spanning the final 22:21 of the Clemson game until the 85:32

Ben Nason's efforts garnered him second-team All-ACC honors last season.

Senior Ken Jonmaire heads a ball past a Cavalier defender during the Hokies' 2-1 ACC victory over No. 2-ranked Virginia at Tech Soccer Field last season.

mark of the Maryland game — was the second-best defensive effort in school history. Only the 402:35 scoreless streak in 2001 was better.

Defensively, the Hokies gave up a mere 1.13 goals per contest for the second consecutive season, with junior goalkeeper Chase Harrison between the pipes. Harrison set one single-season record, while breaking two career marks. His eight shutouts on the season were the most ever during a season at Tech. The Hokies went 7-0-1 in those games, only tying William & Mary. The eight shutouts vaulted Harrison to No. 1 on the career shutouts list with 16, passing Colin Kibler's mark of 15, set from 1998-2001. He also set the career mark for minutes played in goal, with 5,269, surpassing Kibler's record of 5,071 minutes.

The defense, not allowing many shots on goal, helped in setting the record for fewest saves in a single-season at 69. The record of fewest saves (70) had stood since 1976.

Offensively, Tech has a few players who etched their names in the record book.

Allman, leading the way with seven goals on the season, ended his career with 16 goals, just shy of the top-ten list in school history. Fellow senior, Jonmaire, added one goal to his career tally, moving him into a tie for 10th on the career list with 19.

Nason earned All-ACC recognition, making the second team. Ian Taylor was named to the All-ACC Freshman team.

With the departure of only three players and the influx of redshirts and players that were injured early in the season, Tech looks to be in the hunt for an ACC title during the 2005 season.

"We know what we need to do in terms of recruiting and internal issues," Weiss said. "The leadership was dim last year, but it will change with five seniors this fall.

"We have to look at the positives of last season and build on that for 2005."

Virginia Tech Plays in the Nation's Top Conference

The Tradition

Consistency. It is the mark of true excellence in any endeavor.

However, in today's intercollegiate athletics, competition has become so balanced and so competitive that it is virtually impossible to maintain a high level of consistency.

Yet the Atlantic Coast Conference has defied the odds. Now in its 53rd year of competition, the ACC has long enjoyed the reputation as one of the strongest and most competitive intercollegiate conferences in the nation. And that is not mere conjecture, the numbers support it.

Since the league's inception in 1953, ACC schools have captured 94 national championships, including 49 in women's competition and 45 in men's. In addition, NCAA individual titles have gone to ACC student-athletes 119 times in men's competition and 61 times in women's action.

2004-05 in Review

The 2004-05 academic year concluded with the league pocketing three more national team titles and seven individual NCAA crowns. In all, the ACC has won 51 national team titles over the last 15 years.

The ACC's 2004-05 national champions were Wake Forest in field hockey, North Carolina in men's basketball and Duke in women's golf. In addition, a total of 181 student-athletes from the ACC earned first, second or third-team All-America honors this past year.

The Championships

The conference will conduct championship competition in 25 sports during the 2005-06 academic year - 12 for men and 13 for women.

The first ACC championship was held in swimming on February 25, 1954. The conference did not conduct championships in cross country, wrestling or tennis during the first year.

The 12 sports for men include football, cross country, soccer, basketball, swimming, indoor and outdoor track, wrestling, baseball, tennis, golf and lacrosse. Fencing, which was started in 1971, was discontinued in 1981.

Women's sports were initiated in 1977 with the first championship meet being held in tennis at Wake Forest University.

Championships for women are currently conducted in cross country, volleyball, field hockey, soccer, basketball, swimming, indoor and outdoor track, tennis, golf, lacrosse, softball and rowing.

A History

The Atlantic Coast Conference was founded on May 8, 1953, at the Sedgefield Inn near Greensboro, N.C., with seven charter members - Clemson, Duke, Maryland, North Carolina, North Carolina State, South Carolina and Wake Forest - drawing up the conference by-laws.

The withdrawal of seven schools from the Southern Conference came early on the morning of May 8, 1953, during the Southern Conference's annual spring meeting. On June 14, 1953, the seven members met in Raleigh, N.C., where a set of bylaws was adopted and the name became officially the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Suggestions from fans for the name of the new conference appeared in the region's newspapers prior to the meeting in Raleigh. Some of the names suggested were: Dixie, Mid South, Mid Atlantic, East Coast, Seaboard, Colonial, Tobacco, Blue-Gray, Piedmont, Southern Seven and the Shoreline.

Duke's Eddie Cameron recommended that the name of the conference be the Atlantic Coast Conference, and the motion was passed unanimously. The meeting concluded with each member institution assessed $200.00 to pay for conference expenses.

On December 4, 1953, conference officials met again at Sedgefield and officially admitted the University of Virginia as the league's eighth member. The first, and only, withdrawal of a school from the ACC came on June 30, 1971, when the University of South Carolina tendered its resignation.

The ACC operated with seven members until April 3, 1978, when the Georgia Institute of Technology was admitted. The Atlanta school had withdrawn from the Southeastern Conference in January of 1964.

The ACC expanded to nine members on July 1, 1991, with the addition of Florida State University.

The conference expanded to 11 members on July 1, 2004, with the addition of the University of Miami and Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. On October 17, 2003, Boston College accepted an invitation to become the league's 12th member starting July 1, 2005.
