WOMEN'S SOCCER

Virginia Tech's official tribute ribbon logo remembering the victims of the April 16, 2007 tragedy comes from a student-inspired design.

The logo consists of the well-known maroon VT athletic logo that symbolizes the innovative and dynamic nature of Virginia Tech, over an orange ribbon that is a recognition of the lives lost on April 16 and is a symbol of the prevailing Hokie spirit.

The tribute ribbon appears on athletes' uniforms as an inspiration and celebration of the victims' lives and the unforgettable mark they left on the Virginia Tech community, the nation and the world.

The women's soccer team attends a memorial service a week after the tragedy last spring.

The 2007 women's soccer guide is a publication of the Virginia Tech Athletics Communications office, written to assist the working media in their coverage of the Hokies. The 2007 guide was written by Scott Ellis and Kellie Tilton. It was edited and designed by Ellis and Dave Knachel. Photography by Knachel.

In 2007, Virginia Tech began a multi-year contract with Nike for team apparel and equipment.

2007 OUTLOOK

Returning ten starters from last season, the 2007 Virginia Tech women's soccer team continues its development under the reins of fifth-year head coach Kelly Cagle and will remain focused on becoming a contender in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Losing by a total of three goals on the road to three ranked opponents, including the NCAA National Champion North Carolina and NCAA semifinalist Florida State, may be a moral victory for some, but not Cagle. Capturing the Hokies' first ACC title will require beating those teams to become champs in the toughest conference in the country. Still, Cagle believes that those close matches and a tie against nationally ranked Boston College, which ended with the Hokies scoring a last second goal in regulation, highlight that the team is on the right path to developing a winning instinct in down-to-the-wire matches.

Entering a new year, Cagle will be relying on six seniors from her first ACC recruiting class in their final season to lead the team as they hope to improve the 2006 record of 6-8-4 and strive to equal and surpass the successes of the 11-9-0 2004 NCAA Tournament season. What may be the key in separating the 2007 squad from Cagle's previous teams and making the team's goal a reality will not only be its experience in the starting lineup but also its depth as 15 letterwinners return. They will be joined by 10 talented newcomers that will hope to continue Cagle's streak of having a player named to the All-ACC freshman team since the Hokies joined the ACC in 2004.

The team is in position to push through a difficult conference and non-conference schedule that includes 10 ACC matches, a visit by the SEC's Tennessee Volunteers and the women's first ever match against a PAC-10 opponent at Arizona. The Hokies, who also welcome back second-year assistant coaches Charles "Chugger" Adair and Michael Lovett, are poised and ready to make a charge to the ACC Tournament and the NCAA College Cup.

Forwards

The offensive side of the squad returns with a talented and young group of players that will only continue to grow and develop as an offensive force. Junior Laurie Beth Puglisi has already proven to be one of the top offensive-minded players to put on a Hokie uniform and will only get stronger in her remaining two years. Last season, she finished seventh in the ACC in points per game (1.17) and showed her tenacity going after headers. She has also grown as a leader and will be relied on to dominate the front part of the field.

Sophomores Julian Johnson and Emily Jukich made strong contributions last season starting and coming off the bench. Johnson had an important year, as it was her first healthy season without interruption in four years. She showcased her strength with throw-ins that traveled up to 40 yards and led the squad with 12 assists, breaking the team's single-season assist record and finishing tied for third in the country with most assists per game (0.67). Jukich tied Puglisi with a team high seven goals in only 16 games and had the team's only hat trick of the season against Radford. As both continue to gain more experience, they will become high-powered point machines in the Hokie arsenal.

Emily Jukich

Midfielders

The central position will be led by senior team captain Heather Hallberg, who is hoping to finish her career with her first injury-free season since 2004 when she had four game-winning goals in 19 starts and the Hokies' only goal in the NCAA Tournament. Last year, she helped direct traffic in 10 starts. Senior Gina Om will also contribute but like Hallberg has dealt with past injuries. Last year, she started 11 games and had game-winning goals against Radford and UNC Greensboro. Mauri Liberati has started all 37 games the past two years and is developing into a quicker decision maker. She scored one goal last season against Florida State.

The wingers on the outside will be a mixture of experience and youth in what Cagle believes will play a pivotal role if the team is to have success this year. Senior Ashley Kinser and sophomore Robin Chidester, the best one-on-one dribbler on the team who can also play forward, are two of the fittest athletes on the squad and their relentlessness will be needed to put pressure on the competition. Both women scored goals against a nationally ranked Boston College before the match ended in a tie. Junior Mallory Jones and sophomore Ashley Seldon will compete for playing time at the left and right wing.

Defenders

The Hokie defense features the most experienced group of players as seniors Erin Moore and Mary Elizabeth Newton with junior Kim Hickey started in 17 of 18 games together. The crew had its ups and downs early in the year but gelled together as they only gave up 11 goals in the last nine games, including three shutouts.

Four-year starter Moore is the backbone of the defense as she has an excellent knack of getting the ball out of the back and moving it forward. Last season, she even scored two goals against East Tennessee St. and assisted on the game-winning goal against High Point. Hickey will anchor from the center while team-captain Newton will provide support at left back. Senior Jordan Parsels returns from an injury last season to provide support. Sophomores Kristi Sieber, Kylie Stankovics and Megan Strawther will also provide significant depth to the Hokies' line of defense as they started in a combined 15 games last year.

Goalkeepers

Redshirt-junior and team captain Ashley Owens takes over the position after the departure of Mallory Soldner, who left Virginia Tech as the career leader in wins (28) and shutouts (20). Owens remained patient the last two years, improving each time she took to the field and then earning more playing time last year as she helped record two shutouts against Radford and Maryland. She had her first career start against North Carolina, holding the eventual national champions to only one goal with a career high seven saves, and finished the season with a 1.08 goals against average and .812 saves percentage in nine appearances, including three starts.

Sophomore Stephanie Balanoff and sophomore-transfer Mallory Kimsey from High Point University will be competing for playing time this season. The two Florida natives did not see any action last season but will be ready at any point to provide depth.

Ashley Owens

The Freshmen

The coaching staff will welcome nine freshmen to this year's team. One of Cagle's objectives this past offseason was to find more speed, and she believes this crop more than delivers. Meghan Flesch and Stephanie Hylton were both ranked in the Top 150 of 2007 Recruits by Soccer Buzz and will immediately compete for playing time at the midfield position. Kelly Lynch provides Cagle versatility with the ability to contribute at any position. Marika Gray always has her eye on the goal and will develop into a strong goal scorer. Kelsey Billups, Jessica Varela and Roanoke product Jennifer Harvey will also provide quality depth to the forward and midfielder positions in what Cagle believes is her deepest team since she arrived in Blacksburg.

THE COACHING STAFF

Kelly Cagle

Head Women's Soccer Coach
Fifth Season
Duke University (1996)

Kelly Cagle enters her fifth season as the head coach of the Virginia Tech women's soccer program.

Under Cagle's direction, the Hokies have become a force in women's soccer both within the region and nationally. After four seasons at Tech, Cagle's teams have amassed a 32-36-7 mark, while competing in the Atlantic Coast Conference, the toughest conference in the country over the past three seasons.

During her tenure, the program advanced to its first-ever NCAA Tournament in 2004 and defeated a nationally-ranked opponent for the first time. The team has rewritten the record book, garnering 10 new team records and setting nine individual records. Cagle also has coached the program's first All-American and ACC Freshman of the Year.

Under her guidance, the team has placed four players on the All-Mid Atlantic Region team, has had three VaSID selections and four all-conference performers, as well as 11 academic all-stars and eight ACC All-Academic members. Cagle and her staff also pulled in a Top 25 recruiting class in her first season, according to SoccerBuzz.com.

A graduate of Duke University, Cagle looks to lead her team to the next step as it continues play in the prestigious ACC. Cagle is quite familiar with the ACC after her playing days with the Blue Devils and a coaching stint at Wake Forest.

Cagle spent two seasons with the Atlanta Beat of the Women's United Soccer Association prior to taking the reins in Blacksburg. Before being selected in the 10th round of the WUSA draft, Cagle served as an assistant coach at Wake Forest, where she was also the recruiting coordinator. During her time at Wake Forest, the Demon Deacons were an ACC finalist in 1999, made four consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances and was a Top 20 program from 1997-2000. Prior to her time at Wake Forest, Cagle was an assistant coach at the University of Texas during the 1996 season.

She also was a coach in the Atlanta Youth Soccer Association, where she was the co-director of the youth developmental program and summer camps in 2002. From 1997-2000, Cagle was co-director of the Tony da Luz Soccer Camp. She has extensive coaching experience at various levels and earned her National "C" license in 2000.

Cagle is a 1996 graduate of Duke with a degree in sociology and was a four-year letterwinner in soccer. She was a three-time All-American and All-ACC selection in 1993, 1994 and 1995. She was named the ACC Player of the Year in 1995 during her senior year while playing as team captain. Cagle was selected to the ACC 50th Anniversary Soccer Team and was named to the list of Top 10 athletes at Duke for the decade of the 1990s.

Duke was national runner-up in 1992 and made four straight NCAA Tournament appearances during Cagle's playing days. Cagle holds single-season and career records for shots, goals and points at Duke.

"Kelly is greatly respected by all. She worked hard to achieve the goals she has reached. To be respected, one must give respect. That is one of the many qualities and understandings Kelly possesses."

— Mary Elizabeth Newton,
senior midfielder/forward

She started all 90 games of her career with the Blue Devils and was a member of the U.S. National Team program from 1992-95 and again in 1999.

Kelly Cagle (formerly Walbert) is married to Dan Cagle. The couple has a three-year-old daughter, Maggie.

Charles Adair

Assistant Women's Soccer Coach • Second Season • University of San Diego (1993)

Charles "Chugger" Adair enters his second season with the Virginia Tech women's soccer program. He joined the Hokies after serving two seasons as associate head coach for the UC Santa Barbara women's soccer team. While at UCSB, he was involved in all aspects of the soccer program, including recruiting, coaching, scouting, player management, community relations and camps.

Since April 2004, Adair has been an assistant coach and scout on the Cal-South Olympic Development staff. In 2003, he was an assistant coach with the San Diego Spirit of the Women's United Soccer Association. Adair was Youth Soccer Coach/Assistant Director of Competitive Older Ages for the Del Mar Sharks competitive soccer program for eight years.

Along with his time at UC Santa Barbara, Adair has significant experience coaching at the collegiate level. He spent one season as an assistant coach for both the men's and women's teams at Pacific University in Portland, Ore. He also was an assistant coach for the University of San Diego's men's team from 1998-2000.

Adair has recorded numerous minutes as a player as well as a coach. He competed professionally for 10 years, including with the Los Angeles Galaxy of Major League Soccer and the U.S. National Futsal Team. He also spent time playing for the San Diego Sockers, Wichita Wings, Portland Timbers, San Diego Flash, Minnesota Thunder, Seattle Sounders, Milwaukee Wave, Carolina Dynamo and A.A. Ghent (Belgium) from 1993-2003.

A first round draft pick of the San Diego Sockers and the Wichita Wings, Adair spent three years (1990-1992) at the University of San Diego. At San Diego, he was an All-American, a two-year team captain and a member of the NCAA Finalist Team. He played one year at San Diego State before transferring to USD.

Adair earned his bachelor's degree in business administration from USD in 1993 and his MBA from USD in 1996. He also has a United States Soccer Federation "A" Coaching License. Adair and his wife, Susan, have a daughter, Alexandra (4) and a son, Jack (2).

Michael Lovett

Assistant Women's Soccer Coach • Second Season • Murray State University (2006)

Michael Lovett begins his second season with the Virginia Tech Hokies after spending four years as an assistant coach at Murray State.

Lovett works primarily with the goalkeepers, a task at which he has many years of experience. At Murray State, he coached the goalkeepers to 13 shutouts in three seasons and had one student-athlete earn all-conference honors following two shut-outs during tournament play. During his time with the Racers, the team goals-against average lowered from 2.49 in 2001 to 0.93 in 2005.

He has earned NSCAA state, regional and national goalkeeping diplomas, as well as an advanced regional diploma. Lovett served as an assistant coach from 1993-1994 at Murphy High School in Mobile, Ala., and at Murray High School from 2001-2003. He has been a director for Soccer Plus Goalkeeper Schools since 2002. He won the National Goalie War in 2003.

A former player for the University of South Alabama, Lovett earned his bachelor's degree from Murray State in 2006. Lovett and his wife, Patricia, have one son, Skylar (10) and a daughter, Sydney (1).

2006 REVIEW

A young Virginia Tech women's soccer team that only had one senior on the roster entered the 2006 season with the task of making great strides from the previous year, especially in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The schedule did not provide any relief as it included six teams ranked in the top 25, three in the top 10 and the eventual national champion. Nevertheless, the Hokies welcomed the challenge and became a more confident team during their third year in the ACC.

The team opened the season by hosting George Mason at Virginia Tech Soccer Stadium. Evenly matched at 1-1, the first game of the season went into double overtime before being called a tie.

Two days later, regional rival Radford visited Blacksburg. The Hokies put forth an outstanding all-around effort against the Highlanders, winning 6-0. Tech broke the school's 2004 single-game assists record with eight. Freshman Emily Jukich put up a hat-trick in only her second outing as a Hokie, while classmate Julian Johnson matched Tech's single-game record with three assists.

The Hokies followed the outing with their first road trip of the season at the UNC Greensboro Tournament. Tech opened the two-day affair with host UNC Greensboro and earned the only goal of the game in the 60th minute of play when Gina Om knocked in a short pass from Laurie Beth Puglisi.

In the second match, the team met High Point. Jukich and Puglisi put Tech up in the first half 2-0, but High Point managed to rally back and even the score. Jukich then notched her second goal of the game and gave the Hokies the 3-2 victory. Following the tournament, Om, Jukich and Puglisi were named to the all-tournament team.

The next weekend, Tech hosted Wake Forest, James Madison and Liberty in the Virginia Tech Tournament, opening with an evening game against the Dukes. Although JMU was on the board first, the Hokies fought back and Mallory Jones' first career goal brought the team even at two apiece. With nine minutes left, however, the Dukes were able to sneak one past Tech keeper Mallory Soldner and secure the win.

The Hokies rebounded from the loss in the next match by posting a shut-out against Liberty, 2-0. Puglisi had the game winner ten minutes into the match, while Jukich put in a second goal five minutes later. The Tech defense was strong throughout the game, holding Liberty to seven shots and allowing Soldner to only have to make one save.

Gina Om

Next, the Hokies traveled to Indiana to take on Evansville. From the start, the game was difficult with the Purple Aces scoring their first goal in under a minute. Although Tech edged Evansville in shots, 16-10, they were unable to come back from the first goal, falling 3-0.

Returning home, the Hokies hosted their first ACC opponent, then No. 24 Duke. Tech once again found themselves down by three at the 70 minute mark. But the Hokies refused to quit and Puglisi found the back of the net off of a super-sized throw-in from Johnson. Tech was unable to continue the rally, however, and fell 3-1.

When the No. 9 Demon Deacons came to town the second time, the game was defined largely by a pair of own goals. Wake Forest was up 2-0 when a miscommunication by the Tech defense gave the Hokies an own goal and the Demon Deacons the 3-0 lead. Twenty minutes later, however, Wake Forest notched an own goal as well, putting the score at 3-1. Both teams were evenly matched offensively, taking 11 shots each, but neither team was able to put another goal on the board.

Tech hit the road for two Sunshine State matches, determined to break its three-game losing streak. The Hokies first went to Coral Gables to play Miami. Puglisi went on an offensive tear, putting in the team's two goals from a game-high five shots. Miami was only able to counter with one goal, and Tech left with its first ACC win of the season.

Tech's next stop was Tallahassee to take on the No. 3 team in the nation, Florida State. Both teams were held scoreless for the first 30 minutes. At minute 37, Mauri Liberati put the Hokies on the board, allowing Tech to finish the half ahead 1-0. Roughly 13 minutes into the second half, FSU converted a penalty kick to tie the game, and with five minutes remaining, the Seminoles put in the game winner.

Returning to Blacksburg after the heartbreaking loss, Tech played host to the Clemson Tigers. The two teams were even the entire game. The Hokies had the edge in shots, 8-7, and shots on goal, 4-3, but neither team was able to find the back of the net. After two overtimes, the game ended in a scoreless draw. Sophomore Kim Hickey was one of the standout defenders who helped preserve the Hokies' first ACC shutout of the year.

Up next for Tech was in-state rival, No. 14 Virginia in Charlottesville. The game was held scoreless for the first 51 minutes, but in a five-minute span, the Cavaliers were able to score twice. Refusing to be shut out, the Hokies put a goal in with three minutes left when Jukich found the back of the net. Although suffering the loss, Tech's offense had twice as many shots, 20-10.

Facing their second top-three opponent of the season, the Hokies headed to Chapel Hill, N.C., for their final road game to take on No. 2 North Carolina. Keeper Ashley Owens earned her first start of the season and helped hold the eventual national champions scoreless throughout the first half. Five minutes into the second half, UNC converted a free kick from thirty yards out for the game winner. Neither team was able to score the rest of the game. Owens, playing all 90 minutes, recorded seven saves to match the team's season high.

Tech returned home to finish the ACC schedule with two games the following weekend. Hosting Maryland in the first of a three-game homestand, Tech came out and shot 24 times at the Terrapin net. Although the number matched the season high set against Radford, the Hokies could not slip one passed All-ACC goalkeeper Nikki Resnick and the game ended in a 0-0 tie. Owens held her own too, preserving the shut out by stopping five attempts.

No. 24 Boston College served as the Hokies' final ACC opponent of the season two days later. Unlike the previous year's outing, both teams found plenty of scoring opportunities. Tech came out strong, with Mary Elizabeth Newton and Robin Chidester scoring their first goals of the season in the first seven minutes. The Eagles countered and the half ended in a 2-2 tie. BC was able to notch another goal in the second half, and it appeared to be the game-winner as time wore down. Ashley Kinser changed all that, however, when she scored her first career goal with nine seconds left to play. The game went into double overtime and ended in a 3-3 draw.

In the final game of the season, Tech played host to East Tennessee State, and it was all Tech from the beginning. Erin Moore put two on the board, including the game-winner at the five minute mark. Kinser added another for her second goal in as many weeks and the 3-0 win. Soldner, in her last game as a Hokie, preserved her 20th shutout of her career by stopping three shots.

The game signaled the end of an era as Soldner wrapped up her four years at Tech as the career and season leader in the shutouts and wins categories. Soldner played in 73 of 74 games, starting in 70 total, something the coaches didn't envision happening when she first entered the 2003 fall camp as an unknown freshman. She shocked everyone by becoming the starting goalkeeper, a role she flourished in during her collegiate career.

The record book had other changes as Moore, a junior, earned the top spot in career assists during the season. Johnson, a freshman, broke the single-season assist record with 12 and finished third all-time in career assists at Tech.

The year also ended with two players receiving postseason accolades. Puglisi received All-Mid-Atlantic Region Third-Team honors and Johnson was named to the All-ACC Freshman squad, keeping Cagle's streak alive of having a player named to the list every year since joining the ACC. Johnson was also honored on the All-Mid-Atlantic Region Freshman Team.

The Hokies made important strides during the season and became a more competitive squad in the ACC as the young players gained experience. Tech only lost by two goals in ACC matches twice and lost by a total of three goals to three high-ranked opponents on the road. These are examples of improvement from the previous year when the Hokies lost by two or more goals in six games and were shut out in five conference losses.

THE ATLANTIC COAST CONFERENCE

Hokies Play in the Nation's Top Women's Soccer League

The Tradition

Consistency. It is the mark of true excellence in any endeavor.

However, in today's intercollegiate athletics, competition has become so balanced and so competitive that it is virtually impossible to maintain a high level of consistency.

Yet the Atlantic Coast Conference has defied the odds. Now in its 55th year of competition, the ACC has long enjoyed the reputation as one of the strongest and most competitive intercollegiate conferences in the nation. And that is not mere conjecture, the numbers support it.

Since the league's inception in 1953, ACC schools have captured 105 national championships, including 56 in women's competition and 49 in men's. In addition, NCAA individual titles have gone to ACC student-athletes 139 times in men's competition and 86 times in women's action.

The conference made an immediate impact in women's soccer on the national college scene in the fall of 1987 when North Carolina captured the first of what would eventually be 14 national titles for the ACC. Since becoming a league sponsored sport, the Tar Heels have laid claim to 14 of the last 20 national championships, including eight consecutive titles between 1987 and 1994.

In 2006, the ACC sent seven teams to the NCAA Tournament for the second-straight year as Boston College, Clemson, Duke, Florida State, North Carolina, Virginia and Wake Forest all returned to postseason play. It marked the fifth time in the last six years that at least seven teams from the ACC received a bid into the national tournament. North Carolina continued its prowess in the sport as the Tar Heels captured a league-best 17 ACC championship title en route to bringing home the 2006 NCAA crown for the second time in the last four years and 14th overall.

The ACC has garnered at least three national seeds in the NCAA Tournament the last four years, including 2003 and 2005 when the ACC received a league-record four national seeds. In the 2006 national postseason event, North Carolina, Florida State and Wake Forest were seeded the top three teams, respectively. The Tar Heels and Florida State advanced to the College Cup with UNC returning to the semifinals after a two-year hiatus, while the Seminoles made their second consecutive trip and third overall in the last four years. FSU's appearance in the College Cup is the most by any other team in the ACC and the second most in the nation, trailing only UCLA which made its fourth consecutive trip last year.

National recognition poured in for ACC schools in 2006, as six teams capped off the season ranked among the top 25 in two of the three major polls (Soccer America, Soccer Buzz and NSCAA) with North Carolina and Florida State in the top 10 of all three polls. The Tar Heels' Heather O'Reilly was tabbed the Honda Award winner and Soccer America Player of the Year, while teammate Yael Averbuch was named Soccer Buzz Player of the Year. The UNC duo was also named Soccer America MVPs, along with India Trotter from FSU. UNC's Anson Dorrance was voted National Coach of the Year by both Soccer America and Soccer Buzz.

The 11 schools that take to the field this fall under the ACC banner have garnered 113 first, second or third team NSCAA All-America distinctions, 49 National Player of the Year titles and 12 National Rookie of the Year honors. The ACC has also amassed 38 Academic All-Americans since 1986.

2006-2007 in Review

The 2006-07 academic year concluded with league teams capturing five national team titles and 24 individual NCAA crowns. In all, the ACC has won 39 national team titles over the last 11 years. The ACC has won two or more NCAA titles in 25 of the past 27 years.

A total of 137 ACC teams placed in NCAA postseason competition in 2006-07. League teams compiled a 109-70-7 (.605) mark against non-conference opponents in NCAA championship competition. In addition, the ACC had 181 student-athletes earn first team All-America honors this past year. Overall, the league had 250 first, second or third team All-Americans. In addition, the ACC produced nine national Player of the Year and six national Coach of the Year honorees.

The Championships

The conference will conduct championship competition in 24 sports during the 2007-08 academic year - 12 for men and 12 for women.

The first ACC championship was held in swimming on February 25, 1954. The conference did not conduct championships in cross country, wrestling or tennis during the first year.

The 12 sports for men include football, cross country, soccer, basketball, swimming, indoor and outdoor track, wrestling, baseball, tennis, golf and lacrosse. Fencing, which was started in 1971, was discontinued in 1981.

Women's sports were initiated in 1977 with the first championship meet being held in tennis at Wake Forest University.

Championships for women are currently conducted in cross country, field hockey, soccer, basketball, swimming, indoor and outdoor track, tennis, golf, lacrosse, softball and rowing.

A History

The Atlantic Coast Conference was founded on May 8, 1953, at the Sedgefield Inn near Greensboro, N.C., with seven charter members - Clemson, Duke, Maryland, North Carolina, North Carolina State, South Carolina and Wake Forest - drawing up the conference by-laws.

The withdrawal of seven schools from the Southern Conference came early on the morning of May 8, 1953, during the Southern Conference's annual spring meeting. On June 14, 1953, the seven members met in Raleigh, N.C., where a set of bylaws was adopted and the name became officially the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Suggestions from fans for the name of the new conference appeared in the region's newspapers prior to the meeting in Raleigh. Some of the names suggested were: Dixie, Mid South, Mid Atlantic, East Coast, Seaboard, Colonial, Tobacco, Blue-Gray, Piedmont, Southern Seven and the Shoreline.

Duke's Eddie Cameron recommended that the name of the conference be the Atlantic Coast Conference, and the motion was passed unanimously. The meeting concluded with each member institution assessed $200.00 to pay for conference expenses.

On December 4, 1953, conference officials met again at Sedgefield and officially admitted the University of Virginia as the league's eighth member. The first, and only, withdrawal of a school from the ACC came on June 30, 1971, when the University of South Carolina tendered its resignation.

The ACC operated with seven members until April 3, 1978, when the Georgia Institute of Technology was admitted. The Atlanta school had withdrawn from the Southeastern Conference in January of 1964.

The ACC expanded to nine members on July 1, 1991, with the addition of Florida State University.

The conference expanded to 11 members on July 1, 2004, with the addition of the University of Miami and Virginia Tech.

On October 17, 2003, Boston College accepted an invitation to become the league's 12th member starting July 1, 2005.

HOKIE HISTORY

2004 NCAA Tournament Appearance Highlights Hokies' Progress

For nearly two decades, they've been right there. From the Atlantic 10 to the BIG EAST to their current home of the Atlantic Coast Conference, they've been right there to the end.

From its humble beginnings in 1993, the Virginia Tech women's soccer program has been competitive no matter which conference it has called home.

Before 1993, women's soccer was a club sport. The program's first head coach, Sam Okpodu, began his career at Tech simultaneously with its transition from club to varsity status.

After playing an independent schedule the first two seasons, the Hokies joined the Atlantic 10 Conference in 1995. Over the next five seasons, Tech posted a 20-24-2 record in league play.

Tech goalkeeper Hope Handley made history in 1995, becoming the first Hokie to be named to the NSCAA Mid-Atlantic All-Region team.

After playing as an independent again in 2000, the Hokies joined the BIG EAST Conference in time for the 2001 season. In the inaugural BIG EAST campaign, Joy Nsubuga became the first Hokie to earn All-BIG EAST Conference honors with three goals and three assists.

Current head coach Kelly Cagle took the reins in 2003 and wrote a new chapter in the women's soccer history book in 2004, the club's first in the prestigious ACC.

In just her second year at the helm, Cagle led the team to an 11-9 record and the school's first appearance in the NCAA Tournament. During the 2004 season, Ashley Stinson was recognized as the program's first Freshman All-American.

The success Tech has achieved in the early stages of its ACC membership speaks highly of the success that future teams have the potential to achieve. As the Tech fans have come to expect, the Hokies will be right there in the end.

The Hokies celebrate a goal during the 2004 NCAA Tournament. Molly McCall (below) helped the Hokies to the program's first-ever NCAA Tournament appearance.

ATHLETIC FACILITIES

Virginia Tech Soccer Stadium Among the NCAA's Finest

In 2003, the Hokies began play in Virginia Tech Soccer Stadium. Located in the center of the Virginia Tech athletic complex, the facility has become one of the finest places to play in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

In their first four seasons of play at the stadium, the Hokies have posted an overall mark of 17-14-5 (.542), including a 9-2 record in 2004. During that memorable season, Tech defeated then nationally ranked No. 19 Wake Forest 3-2 en route to the ACC and NCAA Tournaments.

The bluegrass playing surface measures approximately 75 by 120 yards. The field is equipped with an underground irrigation system so the pitch can be drained and ready to play in rapid time. The wireless scoreboard allows fans to have a full score update, while a permanent Hubble lighting system allows for night games.

One of the finest facilities in the conference for spectators, the stadium features approximately 2,028 bench-back seats, where each fan has an unobstructed view of the playing surface. Spacious area around the field allows for nearly 1,500 additional fans to watch the games.

Between each team's bench area is the Sandy D. Thompson Press Box. The climate-controlled press box contains a state-of-the-art sound system and ethernet capability. The Internet-ready facility allows Tech's official athletic Web site, hokiesports.com, to originate live audio broadcasts and live stats of the Hokies' matches from the press box. Above the grandstand is a wired camera deck, which is accessible to all media. An artificial surface practice field and a grass field are located next to the game field.

Tech's competition venues — such as 66,233-seat Lane Stadium (above), 10,052-seat Cassell Coliseum (left), English Baseball Field (below) and Tech Softball Park (bottom) — are among the best in college athletics.

Rector Field House provides an excellent place for Tech's athletic teams to practice indoors during inclement weather.

THIS IS VIRGINIA TECH

A Proud University Inventing the Future!

Beginning in 1872 with 132 students and two programs of study, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, popularly known as Virginia Tech, has evolved into a comprehensive university of national and international prominence. With about 26,000 full-time students in Blacksburg and more than 2,000 other students statewide, the university produces world-class scholarship in a challenging academic environment. University tradition is firmly rooted in our motto, Ut Prosim (That I May Serve), and our historic land-grant mission is brought to life through learning, discovery, and engagement.

Learning

Virginia Tech's challenging academic standards attract high-achieving students. Our eight colleges (Agriculture & Life Sciences, Architecture & Urban Studies, Engineering, Liberal Arts & Human Sciences, Natural Resources, Pamplin Business, Science and Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine) and Graduate School offer more degree programs than any other university in the state. Virginia Tech is one of the nation's leaders in developing and using instructional technologies. More than 85 percent of our departments offer e-learning courses, which have attracted more than 96,000 enrollments (credit and noncredit) since 1998. During this time, more than 3,500 different courses have been offered by more than 700 different faculty members.

Discovery

The university's groundbreaking research transforms lives and communities. With annual research expenditures of nearly $322 million, Virginia Tech is ranked 56th among research universities in the United States. The university, which has more than 100 research centers, also consistently ranks among the top institutions in industry-supported research and near the top 10 in the number of patents issued each year. The university's nationally and internationally recognized faculty and motivated students are involved in more than 3,500 research projects in fields ranging from biotechnology to materials, from the environment and energy to food and human health and from transportation to computing information.

Engagement

As part of our outreach mission and in adherence to our motto, we serve and engage the citizens of the commonwealth, the nation and the world. Virginia Tech is involved in a multitude of economic and community development projects. These efforts focus on education and the dissemination of knowledge to the global society in which we live.

Professionals, organizations and communities tap Virginia Tech's vast resources, expertise and research results through hundreds of continuing and professional education programs and five campus centers. Virginia Tech has a long history of providing innovative distance-learning techniques to meet the various needs of working adults and other nontraditional students.

The Inn at Virginia Tech & Skelton Conference Center on campus and The Hotel Roanoke & Conference Center in Roanoke, both owned by Virginia Tech, support the university's outreach mission by working with faculty to plan and host conferences and continuing education and professional programs.

Virginia Tech manages more than $30 million in funded economic development projects in 27 countries and encourages faculty members to develop global course content and study abroad opportunities for students. In 2006-07, about 1,850 students from more than 100 foreign countries studied at Tech, while more than 800 Virginia Tech students studied abroad.

Virginia Cooperative Extension, operated jointly in the commonwealth by Virginia Tech and Virginia State University, has been helping people improve their economic, cultural, and social well being for more than 90 years. With 107 city/county offices, tens of thousands of volunteers, and programs across the state, Extension reaches and teaches millions of Virginians annually.

INTERESTING FACTS

- The university's annual budget is about $970 million.
- Virginia Tech has about 198,000 living alumni from every state and about 100 countries.
- All campus facilities, including residence halls, have high-speed connections to voice, data and video communications.
- Virginia Tech is one of three public universities in the country that offers the combined advantages of a military-style leadership development program — here it is through the Virginia Tech Corps of Cadets — and a traditional academic and social life.
- U.S. News & World Report ranked Virginia Tech's undergraduate program 34th among national public universities. Of all universities — public or private — it ranked Tech 77th.
- Kiplinger Magazine ranked Virginia Tech the 20th-best value in public higher education in the nation.
- The National Science Foundation ranked Tech 11th in the nation in agricultural and natural resources research expenditures.
- The university's undergraduate engineering program is 17th among the nation's engineering schools and eighth among public universities, according to U.S. News & World Report. Seven individual programs ranked in the top 25.
- U.S. News & World Report ranked the College of Engineering's graduate program 30th nationally, with seven individual programs in the top 30.
- The Corporate Research Center was cited for best practice of technology transfer in a national study.
- The Pamplin College of Business undergraduate program was ranked 37th in the nation and 22nd among public schools in the latest U.S. News & World Report rankings. The M.B.A. program was rated 63rd in the world by Financial Times.
- Virginia Tech consistently ranks among the top 15 schools in the nation in number of patents received.
- In its 2007 report, DesignIntelligence, the only national college ranking survey focused exclusively on design, ranked Virginia Tech's undergraduate architecture program fourth nationally and first among public universities. It also ranked the university's undergraduate interior design program seventh in the nation. In addition, it ranked the graduate architecture program 10th in the nation and the graduate interior design program fifth.

BLACKSBURG, VA.

College Town, U.S.A. — A Great Place to Spend Four Years ... or a Lifetime!

One of America's best college towns, Blacksburg is a perfect setting for a great university like Virginia Tech.

Located in Southwest Virginia on a plateau between the Blue Ridge and Alleghany Mountains, Blacksburg combines the laid-back lifestyle of a small town with the amenities one would expect to find around a major center of higher education. Together, the town and university have worked hard to create a progressive community that ranks among the nation's elite living environments.

Virginia Tech and the Town of Blacksburg gained national and international attention by creating the world's first "electronic village." Businesses and industries have been drawn by the potential of the quaint town.

Established in 1798 by John and William Black, the town is surrounded by scenic mountain views that accentuate the area. Since its founding, Blacksburg has grown to become the largest town in Virginia.

The nearly 42,000 residents (including students) enjoy a close proximity to a variety of recreation areas such as the Blue Ridge Parkway, Appalachian Trail, Claytor Lake and the New River. The region features a moderate climate and four distinct seasons.

Blacksburg's location (adjacent to major interstate highways) provides convenient access to most points in the southern and eastern parts of the country.

More information on Blacksburg can be found on the web site of the Blacksburg Electronic Village, www.bev.net or the town's web site, www.blacksburg.va.us.

ACADEMIC SUPPORT SERVICES

The Pursuit of Academic Excellence

The success of Virginia Tech's soccer program rests largely on the academic progress of each student-athlete. The academic performance of Tech student-athletes has improved each year due in part to the Student Athlete Academic Support Services (SAASS).

The Virginia Tech graduation rate for student-athletes has risen significantly in recent years and will be a school-best 76 percent for 2007. This marks the fourth time in the last six years that Virginia Tech's student-athlete graduation rate has been 70 percent or better.

In addition to posting impressive graduation figures, current Virginia Tech student-athletes continue to excel in the classroom. For the 2006 calendar year, 449 3.0 GPA's were earned by student-athletes, student trainers, student managers, cheerleaders and HighTechs. These student-athletes and students from support areas were recognized at the Athletic Director's Honors Breakfast last spring.

Drew Scales

Assistant Director SAASS

Drew Scales enters his sixth year with the Student Athlete Academic Support Services as an assistant director.

Scales provides academic support to each member of the women's soccer team. During the academic year, he monitors the athletes' academic progress in every class.

He provides all academic support services to make the women's soccer team as successful in the classroom as it is on the pitch. Scales has one-on-one meetings with students when difficulties arise. This includes school-related issues, adjusting to a new environment or helping the student-athlete find the right career path.

Scales also has administrative responsibilities that include the development and oversight of SAASS's mentor program.

During his time with the women's soccer team, he has worked with Mallory Soldner and Molly McCall, who both became Academic All-District selections.

Scales is a 1992 graduate of Morehouse College, where he was a four-time letterwinner for the tennis program. He also holds a master's degree from Michigan State in physical education and exercise science and another from the Arizona School of Professional Psychology in clinical psychology.

The expectations of the Virginia Tech community are that each student-athlete achieves their maximum academic and athletic potential. With the proper assistance, facilities and encouragement, these potentials can become a reality.

SAASS provides programming for student-athletes from their freshman year through graduation. This includes a comprehensive orientation to Tech, study hall, mentoring, tutoring, academic monitoring, academic recognition and eligibility education. Additionally, student-athletes are referred to and encouraged to take advantage of other campus agencies charged with helping students in their academic pursuits.

In the 2006-07 academic year, the SAASS office moved to the West Side of Lane Stadium. Here, student-athletes have access to state-of-the-art technology, quiet study facilities, individualized tutorial rooms, and direct access to the SAASS staff. This complex provides a centralized place for student-athlete services. The new facility features more than 18,000 square feet of functional space, 10 staff offices, 18 private tutor rooms, a state-of-the-art classroom, 45 station computer lab, three reading/study rooms, a conference room and a reference library.

Together, these spaces provide the student-athletes with a variety of study environments conducive to their success. Athletes can use these facilities between classes, after practice or in the evenings, with flexible hours tailored to make the most of a student-athlete's limited time.

Chris Helms, in his ninth year at Tech, is the director and is responsible for the development and leadership of the Student Athlete Academic Support Services office. He is assisted by academic coordinators Colin Howlett, Sarah Armstrong, Katie Ammons, Drew Scales and Jess Hegr; learning specialists Peggy Weiss and Melissa Daigneault; systems administrator Joseph Goodman; and secretary Terrie Repass.

OFFICE OF STUDENT LIFE

Allowing the Total Student-Athlete to Thrive

Led by the Virginia Tech Student Athlete Advisory Committee, Hokie student-athletes volunteered over 1,400 hours in the local community in the past year. In addition, over 400 Virginia Tech student-athletes earned a 3.00 grade point average during one or both semesters in 2006. The accomplishments are even more amazing in the context of the 2006-2007 athletic seasons being some of the most successful in Virginia Tech history.

Patricia Lovett, who came to Tech from Murray State, is the Coordinator of Student Life. The programs and services implemented by the Virginia Tech Athletics Office of Student Life are inspired by the NCAA/CHAMPS Life Skills Program. The program was honored for its commitment to serving the good of the student-athletes by the Division I-A Athletic Director's Association as a Program of Excellence.

Student Athlete Advisory Committee

Two members of each sport team serve on SAAC each academic year. The leadership team during 2006-2007 was Lindsay Pieper, lacrosse, president; Coleman Collins, men's basketball, vice-president and Samantha Ference, women's cross country, secretary. Highlights of the 2006-2007 SAAC include the first student-athlete formal dance in January, a toy drive competition among the sports teams for the Montgomery County Christmas store collecting over 1,200 toys, a canned food drive competition versus University of Virginia's SAAC (donating over 4,000 canned foods to the local food banks) and participating in Virginia Tech's Relay for Life. For the first time in school history, SAAC sponsored two members on Homecoming Court – Bryan Collier (men's soccer) and Jessica Botzum (women's swimming and diving).

Personal Development

Virginia Tech student-athletes obtain personal development education through workshops and speakers. Last year, they welcomed Michael Franzese to campus in November. Franzese, the son of a kingpin in New York's Columbo crime family, talked to student-athletes about the downfalls of gambling and the importance of integrity in themselves, their athletics and their community. Topics covered in these presentations include appropriate campus and community conduct, media relations, sport psychology, drug and alcohol education, sports agent relations, gambling and healthy relationships. In the past, the women's soccer team has also participated in a Leadership Development workshop developed by the coaches.

Career Development

Student-athletes are offered workshops on topics such as resumé design, career fair etiquette, interview skills, interview attire and mini-career fairs. Student-athletes are encouraged to participate in on-campus interviewing and eRecruiting along with securing internships and co-ops during their college careers.

Academic Excellence

Student-athletes with a 3.0 GPA are rewarded each semester by being honored on the Athletic Director's Honor Roll. The 2006 calendar year listed 449 student-athletes with this honor, a 20 percent increase from the 2005 calendar year. Fifty-six Hokie football players were named to the 2006 Athletic Director's Honor Roll.

Andrew Montgomery (men's cross country) and Jessica Botzum (women's swimming and diving) received the Skelton Award for Academic Excellence in Athletics. The award is given to one male and one female student-athlete who demonstrate leadership, outstanding academic excellence and community involvement. The recipients of the award receive a $5,000 scholarship donated by Dr. Bill and Peggy Skelton.

Community Outreach

As stated earlier, the Virginia Tech student-athletes are involved more than ever in the local community. Having volunteered over 1,400 hours in the schools, community groups and hospitals, the student-athletes are setting a high precedent for all involved with the program. Under the "Hokies with Heart" umbrella, each sports team has a community partner with which it volunteers time and hosts at a home match to honor the partnership program. The women's soccer team partners with Margaret Beeks Elementary School.

SPORTS MEDICINE

Providing Experienced, Professional Care

The Virginia Tech Sports Medicine Department is an ever-changing and developing unit that strives to provide the most current and comprehensive care to all student-athletes. Under the leadership of Mike Goforth, assistant director of athletics for athletic training, the department is constantly evolving to incorporate new ideas and state-of-the-art resources for the betterment of student-athletes.

Their team of certified athletic trainers, orthopaedic surgeons, Board Certified primary care physicians, chiropractors, physical therapists, sport psychologists, nutritionists, massage therapists and orthotists are available on site to manage the health care needs of Tech athletes. The staff continually looks for ways to enhance the services provided for their athletes as evidenced by their participation in local and national projects pertaining to related topics such as concussion management, prevention of antibiotic resistant types of staph infection, high ankle sprains and collegiate health care management strategies.

As part of the evolution, Tech recently completed its sixth full year in the 4,300-square-foot Eddie Ferrell Memorial Training Room. This area consolidated the training rooms that existed in the Merryman Center and Cassell Coliseum. The facility gives the training staff a centralized area to care for the needs of all Virginia Tech student-athletes. Virginia Tech now has more than 10,000 square feet dedicated to sports medicine, placing it in the top five percent nationally.

The $10 million Merryman Center includes 2,400 square feet of medical space and a physician's suite. The suite is equipped with a new state-of-the-art X-ray system, fluoroscopy unit and minor procedure room, while the training room has offices for the staff, dozens of training tables, two cold tubs, whirlpools, an underwater treadmill, a Biodex System 3 and various other pieces of rehabilitation equipment and treatment modalities.

The range of benefits athletes have access to include custom orthotics, custom mouth guards, specialized DonJoy prophylactic bracing and many other options to help prevent or protect them from injuries. The sports medicine staff also takes great pride in treating the athletes year-round. Special attention is paid to off-season activity.

"If our strength and conditioning is so important, and it is, then we owe it to our athletes to provide them with the necessary resources to keep them actively participating," Goforth said. "We basically adopt the attitude that in the fall, our mission is to keep them participating on the field and during the other times of the year, it is our job to keep them participating in our strength and conditioning program."

Their programs consist of strengthening, stretching and — most importantly — movement pattern analysis and training to help prevent the re-occurrence of injuries.

"We value the off-season greatly within our department," Goforth said. "We have adopted the same mindset as our strength and conditioning staff and look at our off-season time as an opportunity to get our athletes better as opposed to time off for our staff."

If physical therapy is needed, student-athletes can be seen by physical therapist Mark Piechoski in the Ferrell Training Room. Piechoski, who is a certified athletic trainer, physical therapist and strength and conditioning specialist, plays a large role in the overall program developed to return the injured athlete back to 100 percent. In addition, staff sport psychologist Dr. Gary Bennett is available to all student-athletes for personal and performance issues. Team chiropractors, Dr. Greg Tilley and Dr. Dale Reynolds, provide Tech athletes with specialized treatment for spine-related conditions and play a huge role in performance enhancement through various chiropractic techniques.

"Our goal is to provide the same high level of health care that professional and Olympic athletes receive," Goforth continued. "Our usage of specialist care is modeled after the NFL system and incorporates components of the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs."

Team orthopaedic surgeon Dr. Marc Siegel brings a wealth of experience and skills to assist when athletes need orthopaedic consultation for certain types of sports-related injuries that occur from time to time.

Virginia Tech also maintains a special relationship with Montgomery Regional Hospital, which is the choice for state-of-the-art equipment to perform surgeries, diagnostic imaging and processing of laboratory requests.

Katie Baer is the primary athletic trainer for the women's soccer team.

ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

Keeping the Student-Athlete Ready to Play

Strength and Conditioning

One of the most important aspects of a successful college athletics program is its strength and conditioning program. Before the lights ever come on, before the players run onto the field for the first game and before the first goal is ever scored for a season, college soccer players work on getting themselves physically prepared for the rigors of a five-month season.

Thanks to the direction of Assistant Athletics Director for Athletic Performance Mike Gentry, the Virginia Tech strength and conditioning program is among the best in the nation, helping to make the soccer program one of the best as well.

Tech soccer players train in the Jim "Bulldog" Haren Weight Room. Located in Jamerson Athletic Center, the 5,000-square foot weight room was officially dedicated in September 1985 to Haren, a former Hokie player and long-time supporter of Virginia Tech Athletics.

Assisting Gentry in the weight room this year are Terry Mitchell, assistant director of strength and conditioning, and Jamie Meyer coordinator for strength and conditioning for women's soccer.

Jamie Meyer (below) coordinates the Hokies' workouts.

Sports Nutrition

Eating healthy and choosing nutritious diets are important aspects of a Virginia Tech student-athlete's life and that's why in July 2002, the athletics department implemented the sports nutrition program. Amy Freel serves as the director.

Freel provides individual players with diet counseling on issues such as gaining lean muscle mass, losing body fat, and eating choices to improve performance.

"It is extremely beneficial for our student-athletes to have nutrition education and counseling available to them in order for them to remain successful in their sports and outside of athletics," Freel said. "The individualized nutrition education allows the athletes and me to get very specific on their nutritional, personal and sport-specific goals."

Also in July 2002, the Virginia Tech Athletics Department purchased the BodPod body composition system. Tech is one of a handful of college athletic departments using this type of technology. The BodPod is found in many professional training facilities, such as the NFL and Major League Baseball. It accurately measures body composition (percent of body fat, lean muscle mass and fat mass) through air displacement within five minutes. Research has shown that an increase in lean muscle mass will increase athletic performance. The Sports Nutrition Program has helped countless Tech athletes maximize their athletic performance.

The BodPod

Sport Psychology

Virginia Tech offers another important service to all of its student-athletes — sport psychology. Dr. Gary Bennett coordinates the sport psychology department, which offers psychological and performance enhancement services for student-athletes. Bennett also works closely with the Cook Counseling Center.

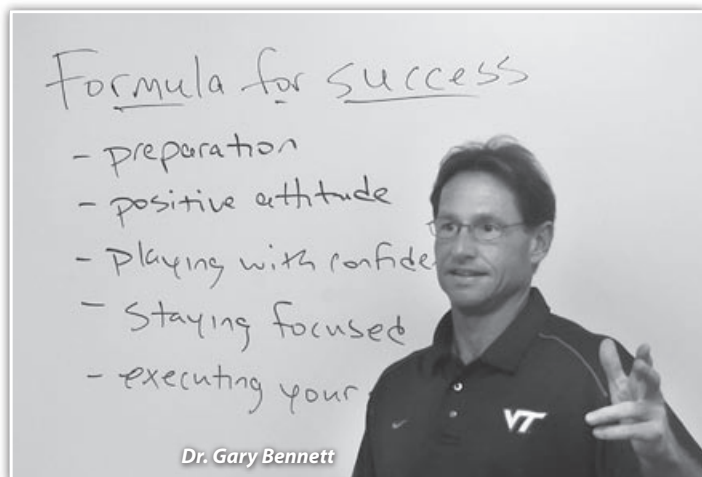

Bennett meets with student-athletes on an individual basis for personal counseling and to discuss the mental aspects of the game. He also works on team building, communication and performance enhancement.

Mike Gentry, assistant AD for athletic performance, said, "I've always felt that (sport psychology) was an important element. We want to be a holistic model of an athletics department, and we wanted to and needed to include sport psychology in that model."

"We try to address all the various factors that affect student-athletes' performance on and off the field," Bennett said. "We believe we can help athletes perform better by addressing those concerns."

The sport psychology department also offers an injury group to afford injured athletes the opportunity to meet with other injured athletes and talk about their recovery process. Injured athletes may also meet individually with the sport psychologists. On average, the psychologists conduct 20 individual sessions per week and meet weekly with teams as the need arises.

One of the sport psychology resources is the Dynavision 2000, a unique conditioning and training program designed to increase focus and concentration, improve coordination and visuomotor reactions and increase peripheral awareness. Virginia Tech is privileged to be one of only a handful of schools with this cutting-edge technology.

MEDIA INFORMATION

Virginia Tech women's soccer home games are held at the Tech Soccer Complex and are free of charge. Media interested in attending these games are encouraged to notify the Virginia Tech Sports Information office at least 24 hours in advance.

The Sandy D. Thompson press box is located on the opposite side of the field from the grandstand between the team benches. Additional space, including a film area, is located on top of the grandstand. No media pass is needed to enter the press box.

Coach/Player Interviews

Please schedule all interviews at least 24 hours in advance. For interviews with head women's soccer coach Kelly Cagle or any of the athletes, please contact Scott Ellis at the Virginia Tech Athletics Communications Office — (540) 231-6892.

Coach Cagle is usually available for interviews during morning office hours Monday through Thursday. Interviews with players will be available according to class and practice schedules. At no time will an athlete's telephone number be released to the media. Members of the media are asked not to contact an athlete at home or on their cell phone.

Post-Game Interviews

Coach Cagle and players will be available for interviews after home contests on the field at the Virginia Tech Soccer Stadium. Please make all requests for interviews with Ellis in the press box.

Game Results

Box scores will be available immediately following the conclusion of the game and will also be available at hokiesports.com. A short AP-style story will be faxed to all major media outlets in Virginia and also will be made available online.

Team and individual statistics will be updated and available shortly after each game as well.

Live Stats and Broadcasts

Fans and media can keep up with the Hokies via the Internet with live stats. At all home games, and selected away contests, play-by-play, as well as up-to-date box scores and stats, are available by clicking on the live stats link on Tech's homepages. Once again this year, audio broadcasts can be found on hokietv.com. Veteran play-by-play man Jerry Massey will call most home games, providing fans with another option to keep up with the team.

By the Way ... What Is a Hokie?

That's the most often-asked question in Virginia Tech athletics. The answer leads all the way back to 1896 when Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College changed its name to Virginia Polytechnic Institute. With the change came the necessity for writing a new cheer and a contest for such a purpose was held by the student body. Senior O.M. Stull won first prize for his "Hokie" yell which still is used today. Later, when asked if "Hokie" had any special meaning, Stull explained the word was solely the product of his imagination and was used only as an attention-getter for his yell. It soon became a nickname for all Tech teams and for those people loyal to Tech athletics. The official school colors — Chicago maroon and burnt orange — also were introduced in 1896. They were chosen because they made a "unique combination" not worn elsewhere at the time.

The Hokie Stone Story

Most of the buildings on the beautiful Tech campus are constructed using Hokie Stone. This natural rock is a 475-million-year-old dolomite limestone, some of which is mined from a quarry located not far from Cassell Coliseum. In constructing the building at Tech, a stonemason shapes individual stones, arranges them and cements them together with mortar to create walls of great strength and durability.
